KING-SIZED 'FLAT': The air-inflated roof of Pontiac Stadium, home of the Detroit Lions football team, went flat Thursday evening during a storm. With two large punctures, the fiberglass fabricated roof collapsed onto grid of suspended cables. Stadium officials conjectured a sudden lowering of air pressure outside during storm caused fabric to rupture. Roof normally is held in place by air pressure supplied by blowers. When inflated, outer cover stands 202 feet high, but collapsed it is only 100 feet high. Exterior and interior views are AP wirephotos.

Storm Causes Blowout Of Stadium Dome

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Mother Nature pricked the $55.7 million bubble known as Pontiac Stadium, but the infant structure's 10-acre, air-inflated, fiberglass dome could be puffed up again by late Friday.

Four panels, about 20-feet-by-20, were blown out by a heavy storm Thursday. Like a leaky balloon, the dome fizzled and deflated, settling on 18 steel suspension cables that crisscross above the one-year-old stadium — named one of the 10 outstanding American engineering feats of 1975 by the National Society of Professional Engineers.

Stadium officials said they believed the puncture was caused by a sudden lowering of air pressure outside the dome during Thursday's storm. The air pressure inside the dome is maintained by air blowers.

"We're probably very lucky we had the type of structure we had," said Charlie McSwigan, stadium manager. "If we had a regular roof it would have probably collapsed and it would take two months to get up again."

McSwigan said material to repair the holes was being shipped from Buffalo, N.Y., and that workers were called in to begin repairs Thursday night.

"We had a tremendous storm for a five or 10 minute period," McSwigan said. "There were high winds and hail. I think it would happen again if there was another tremendous storm."

Two of the blown panels are from the top of the roof and two adjacent ones on the side. Two of them fell to the stadium floor and two others were hanging.

No one was injured. Also, some metal sheeting blew off at the top of the stadium near the lights. McSwigan said that was expected to be fixed by this morning. He said panel repairs were expected to be done "by sometime" this afternoon.

"It was not an extensive amount of damage," he said. "We'll be back in business for the Detroit Lions game Thursday night."

Pontiac Stadium is home of the Lions of the National Football League. Their final exhibition game of the season will be Thursday night against the Baltimore Colts.

Water that settled on the deflated roof was drained out and the artificially surfaced field is expected to be mopped up soon after roof repairs are completed.

McSwigan said once the damage is fixed it'll take about four hours to re-inflate the dome. Even if the roof still sagged by gametime it wouldn't affect the contest. The Lions played a couple exhibitions last season before the dome was inflated.

The roof weighs some 200 tons. Air from 29 blowers keeps it inflated during events, but only two are used at other times.

The 80,000-seat stadium is virtually air-tight. It has revolving and pressure-balanced doors helping maintain air pressure on the roof.

CLEVELAND (AP) — A Vietnam veteran who held as many as 13 hostages during a nine-hour siege inside Cleveland's landmark Terminal Tower in protest against his former employer's treatment of fellow veterans, faces charges of kidnapping, authorities said. Ashby Leach, 30, of Huntington, W.Va., was to be formally charged today, authorities said. Charles R. McKinnon, special agent in charge of the FBI here, said Leach also may be charged with extortion and threatening a company engaged in interstate commerce.

"I made my point," Leach shouted Thursday night after he heard his complaints about veterans' rights aired on national television.

Leach had walked into the offices of Chessie System Inc., a railroad holding company that employed him in 1971. Armed with a shotgun and a pistol, he took 13 hostages and demanded that the firm change its practices toward veterans.

Four of the original hostages managed to get away. Those who were left — eight men and one woman — were unharmed.

Howard Skidmore, a vice president, said that an apprentice program Leach had joined at Chessie in Huntington, W.Va., was not registered with the federal government, and that Leach was therefore ineligible for supplemental federal benefits. Skidmore said the program was not registered in order to avoid "rigamarole and red tape."

Skidmore said that in 1971 Leach had confronted Chessie president Hays T. Watkins outside a Huntington hotel. Leach was carrying a sign complaining about Chessie's practices concerning veterans, he said.

James L. Wellington, a Michigan delegate at the Republican National Convention last week in Kansas City, saw his candidate, Ronald Reagan, defeated, but it wasn't because Wellington didn't try hard enough.

Wellington, a Van Buren county commissioner from LaCrosse, himself admits that he and the other Reaganites in the Michigan delegation were almost "barbaric" in their futile but noisy demonstrations.

The Reagan forces frequently interrupted the convention proceedings with long and noisy outbursts of support for their candidate.

Wellington must have been one of the most noticeable.

He was described as a "Reagan zealot" in a caption above his photo in the Aug. 30 edition of Newsweek magazine. Wellington says he doesn't object to the label.

A Detroit newspaper, in a convention story in the Aug. 20 edition, also took notice of the 39-year-old conservative Republican.

Immediately after Reagan was nominated, Wellington was up on his feet like a bolt, yelling at the top of his lungs, the paper said.

"Wellington blew bursts on a long, red plastic trumpet between shouts and danced and jumped up and down, first in the aisles and later atop his chair, all the while holding aloft a 'This is Reagan Country' sign strapped to a long wooden pole with his belt," it reported.

Now that the hoopla is over, a disappointed Wellington said he may support President Ford if the Republican state central committee in Michigan supports conservative candidates.

He said that before he puts on a Ford-Dole button, he will be watching to see if the committee throws its support to state Rep. Kirby Holmes of Utica in spite of the fact Holmes was a Reagan delegate at the convention. Holmes is seeking re-election to the state legislature.

Legion Answers Carter

SEATTLE (AP) — The American Legion has countered Jimmy Carter's proposed blanket pardon for Vietnam-era draft evaders by adopting a resolution urging prosecution "of all persons charged with evading the military draft."

The resolution, adopted unanimously Thursday on the last day of the legion's convention, was the official reaction to Carter's proposal. The unofficial reaction, jeers and boos and shouts of "No! No!" filled the convention hall Tuesday when Carter voiced the proposal in a speech to the more than 2,000 delegates.

The Carter proposal also was countered Wednesday by Republican vice-presidential candidate Bob Dole of Kansas who told the delegates President Ford had promised "no blanket clemency, no blanket pardon, no blanket amnesty." Dole received a standing ovation.

Also adopted Thursday was a resolution stating that the legion is "adamantly and unalterably" opposed to efforts to unionize members of the armed forces.

Chairman Leslie H. Fischer has issued call for a meeting of the Berrien County Board of Commissioners at 11:30 A.M. on Thursday, September 2, 1976 in the Commissioner's Room on the third floor of the Berrien County Courthouse in St. Joseph, Mich.

By MARY STEVENSON
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Michigan Citizens Lobby says it plans to file suit in the state Court of Appeals to force a proposal calling for a state graduated income tax onto the November ballot.

Doug Ross, co-director of the lobby, said Thursday the suit would be filed "as quickly as a brief can be prepared" — probably today. The suit will ask the court to order the Board of State Commissioners to certify petition signatures and place the proposed constitutional amendment on the Nov. 2 general election ballot.

The board, in an apparent political split, failed to muster the required majority to either certify 305,000 petition signatures supporting the measure, or order its staff to verify the signatures.

Board Chairman Esther Waite, a Democrat, said she does not know if the board will meet again to verify the signatures before Sept. 2, the deadline for placing the proposal on the ballot.

Ross said the stalemate represented "the most cynical kind of partisan approach to the whole initiative process." "What's happening appears to be that Republican members are simply going to try and block the board from taking any action," Ross said. "It's a back door way to deny people the opportunity to vote on change in their tax system," he said, in announcing the court suit.

The proposal would: —Remove the constitutional ban on a graduated income tax. —Roll back for one year, until Jan. 1, 1978, the current 4.9 per cent income tax rate to a maximum 3.9 per cent on the first $20,000 of taxable personal income, but provide a higher rate of taxation on income over that amount.

—Establish a minimum $1,300 exemption for each dependent. After Jan. 1, 1978, the legislature would be able to establish its own rates for taxing personal income.

The measure requires about 265,000 signatures to get onto the ballot, and the board's staff says about 305,000 submitted by the Citizens Lobby are valid.

But former Ingham County Circuit Court Judge Donald Reising, who represents the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce and other opponents of the measure, has filed a complaint with the board, alleging that a private statistical study his clients commissioned indicates the proposal lacks sufficient petition signatures.

Reising, who wants the board to do its own random sampling, said the private sampling indicates that up to 88,550 signatures may be invalid because they belong to non-registered voters. If that sampling is correct, it would mean the proposal wouldn't have enough signatures to get on the ballot.

The board, made up of two Democrats and two Republicans, uses a rule requiring that a member of each party concur on a motion before that motion can carry. This didn't happen on either motion voted on, leaving them both in a state of limbo.

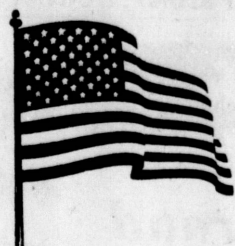

Mrs. Waite and Jessie Dillard, both Democrats, voted against a random sampling, while Republican Nancy Chase voted yes. Republican Wallace Riley, who in the past has called for such a sampling, was absent.

On certifying the signatures without a scientific sampling, the two Democrats voted yes, while Mrs. Chase abstained. Reising said the vote appeared to reflect a political split but said he felt the action reflected a philosophical issue.

But James Edwards, attorney for the Citizens Lobby, said: "I can't see it other than as a political situation."

Mrs. Chase denied that politics was involved, and said she simply wants more information before making up her mind.

'Bob' Payne Has Been Good For BH Schools

Marvin W. Radom, president of Benton Harbor's K-O Products Co. and a 1936 graduate of Benton Harbor high school, appropriately calls attention to the fact that Benton Harbor is losing an outstanding educator this fall, Robert W. Payne.

Radom expresses himself as "deeply disturbed" that Payne has resigned as deputy superintendent here to take a job as assistant superintendent of Forest Hills school district east of Grand Rapids. Radom accurately states that Payne "held our schools together during all of the trials and tribulations of the past few years."

Payne did that not only four times when he served as acting superintendent but he often poured oil on troubled waters when permanent, on-the-job superintendents failed to manage Berrien county's largest and most problem-ridden school district smoothly.

The first time he was named acting superintendent was in 1968 when Superintendent Albert Johnsen resigned to go elsewhere. At that time, teachers circulated petitions asking the board of education to make Payne permanent superintendent.

For some reason that shall always remain a mystery, the board passed over a nugget on its doorstep in favor of mining for gold out in the great unknown.

Not that the superintendents since Johnsen quit have been bad necessarily, but one wonders how many fewer problems there might have been if Payne had been made permanent chief in 1968.

He has always seemed to mesh with every group involved in the schools: students, parents, teachers, board, administrators. He's had a friendly eye cast toward the taxpayers, too.

Payne would have accepted the superintendent's job in 1968, the first time he stepped into the breach as acting superintendent. But thereafter he was not interested.

Too bad. And definitely too bad that "Bob" Payne is leaving Benton Harbor. He is a competent, friendly, totally honest man who will be sorely missed.

Forest Hills schools are getting a real break in adding him to their administrative staff.

BH FIRM'S PRESIDENT PRAISES EDUCATOR

Editor,

I, and I am sure, many others are deeply disturbed that Benton Harbor Area Schools Asst. Supt. Robert Payne saw fit to leave our community. Bob held our schools together during all of the trials and tribulations of the past few decades. He acted as superintendent on several occasions, having declined the position while the Board searched for a new man. He will be missed. His many years of excellent and conscientious service will be remembered by many of us who were active in school affairs.

And his wife, Mary Lou, will be missed as well. Besides being a teacher she counseled many troubled young people at a time when they really needed help.

I, and all of their friends, wish both all of the health and happiness possible in their new positions.

'LET'S KEEP OUR IDEOLOGIES AT HOME'

Editor,

We read repeatedly reports of the conditions of poverty in the under-developed countries and in the native areas of South Africa.

Sincere and well-meaning missionaries point out to us that we would be more blessed, if we would only share some of our riches — our abundant food, our color TV, our two cars, etc. — with the poor in the world.

It is hard to disagree that we live and enjoy a life of comfort and affluence in our wonderful country.

But isn't it another case of nearly unbelievable arrogance on our parts to assume that the wealth of gadgets we treasure so highly, is a pattern of life that would bring happiness to those in other countries?

During World War II butter was rationed, so we could ship part of our production to our Russian allies. Then rumors indicated that our friends preferred lard to spread on their bread.

Now we follow our Master's exhortation to spread the Good News all over the world. And with it we spread our concepts and beliefs of civil rights, freedoms and material wealth, convinced that this is part of our mission.

For years we blamed unrest and revolution in those countries on Communist agitators, and bemoaned the deaths and miseries of the innocent civilians as much as the spread of the ideology.

Are we really in a position to claim that our ideologies are better for them, that the unrest we foment is less disastrous for them, even though we are fully convinced that our motives are inspired and pure? Reports indicate that Vietnam has less corruption and better morals since the North Vietnam takeover.

The United Nations debates show that many of the emerging nations, freed of colonial rule, act as unruly children in the family of nations. Their domestic conditions rarely reflect increased liberty for the inhabitants.

No, I don't doubt for a moment the devoted, sincere motives of our missionaries of all faiths. If they could only stress a little more the exhortation to "Give unto Caesar what is Caesar's", the development of a social system to fit their needs might progress slowly without the revolutionary strife and misery for the population.

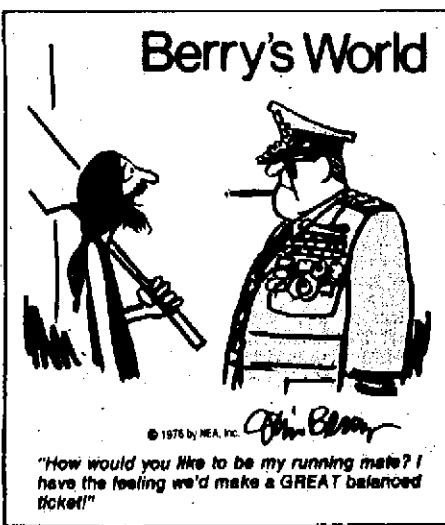

We might find that they could live happily without our cars, refrigerators, jets and TV violence. And perhaps without our beloved individual civil liberties, even though it would be a shock to our arrogant convictions.

Let's keep our ideologies at home.

Another Grand Old Platform

WASHINGTON — Political campaign platforms are inevitably nailed together with pegs of powder. The planks are in place but will support no weight. As Oscar Levant once remarked about politicians and the philosophies they formalize, they have a propensity for doublecrossing such bridges when they come to them.

It's remembered, for example, that the party platform for Benjamin Harrison included references to prosperity and plenty for all. Thus, as legend has it, when Harrison was elected and once saw a man forced by deprivation to eat grass on the White House lawn, he acted quickly to rectify the situation. Go around in back, the President told the Poor fellow, "the food grows longer there."

So it is that the 1976 version of the Republican party's highly suspicious platform may be nothing more than additional Grand Old Platitudes. Yet there is at least one brief bit of it which gives hopes to the dreamers. Addressing itself to a "government that works," the party demands "repeal of legislation which permits automatic increases in the salaries of members of Congress." It suggests that if Congress wants more pay, it must vote publicly for the right, thus standing answerable to its employers, the people.

At casual reading, the plank seems unadventurous. Being for public accountability in America is about as risky as coming out foursquare for adequate rainfall in the grain belt. Yet in fact the repeal position is a courageous one for the GOP. Its presidential nominee, Gerald Ford, has for some time believed Congress should not have to bother with the democratic process regarding salary hikes, that the increases should be regular, substantial and fully automatic.

The issue goes back to July of last year, when the congressional leadership prevailed on old colleague Ford to conspire with them in insulating legislators from the prickly effects of inflation. The leadership wanted annual cost of living increases, but did not dare risk voting for it on a yearly basis. And thus a plot was formed.

The leadership created a bill providing for the automatic escalations. The bill was buried as a rider to obscure legislation regarding post office salaries. Then before the media or the people got wise, it passed through both houses like a shot with no sound. Good Jerry Ford, the man of the people, signed it before the echo of the aye votes had died. Salaries jumped instantly from $42,500 to $44,600, foregoing the possibility that Senator Kennedy's children might go hungry, and insuring a like annual increase in perpetuity.

The tactics did not delight everyone. The bill barely passed, 272 to 242 (the difference in the House was a single vote). And since then several members who originally favored it have had second thoughts; Rep. Robert Drinan, for one, who also is a Catholic priest, has decided that his working class constituency in Massachusetts feels his yes vote may have been incompatible with his clerical vow of poverty.

Of course the hearing elections may have something to do with renewed discomfort in Congress regarding the matter. Iowa Rep. Charles Grassley, who has filed seven bills to repeal the cost of living nonsense, says any member who voted for it "has the potential for trouble." Grassley reminds that another pay hike is due Oct. 1. He says a second hefty increase is probable early next year when a presidential commission makes its quadrennial recommendations on congressional salaries. And then there is the hike of Oct. 1, 1977.

Debates Are Good For All

WASHINGTON — Particularly a whole generation of voters has come of age since Richard Nixon and John F. Kennedy held the country's first — and, until now, last — televised debate between presidential candidates.

These young people only know by legend of the dramatic confrontation which is greatly credited with giving Kennedy the half a percent margin by which he squeaked to victory in 1960.

For them, the coming series of debates between President Gerald Ford and his Democratic challenger Jimmy Carter will be a new experience. And for the rest of us, who watched the Nixon-Kennedy debates and remember them well, it will be an exciting revival of a political event which never should have been allowed to lapse.

In fact, it seems to me impossible to exaggerate the importance of the face-to-face clashes to which the President and Carter have agreed.

The debates may well play a more significant role in determining the outcome of the election than all the organizing and speech-making and issues identification combined. The candidates should attract a huge audience, despite the widespread apathy of this election year. The novelty of it alone will help, and in addition the fall line-up of TV entertainment sounds so dismal it may not offer much viewer competition.

This is Carter's big opportunity to show that he's another Kennedy, just as knowledgeable as the other guy with the bigger title. And it is Ford's big opportunity to demonstrate that he's not just a klutz who forever bumps his head but a man who can outshine the country kid in the clinches.

Carter has been eager for a debate for some time, as have other challengers since 1960. But incumbents and nominees with a clear lead over their rivals, such as Nixon had over Hubert Humphrey in 1968, have persistently refused to share a television forum and thereby give the opposition greater exposure than might otherwise be available. Nor, remembering that Nixon lost merely because Kennedy held his own, have they been eager to allow their rivals such a clean shot at them.

But the situation is unique this year. It is the incumbent who is in trouble and who needs to demonstrate that he can match wits with the clever outsider. Ford is the underdog in this campaign. His drive for election to the White House in his own right badly needed the unexpected, something to give it a shot of adrenalin.

So, in a sense, the debates are Ford's Schweikert. There may be more prospect for success in Ford's maneuver than in Ronald Reagan's selection of Sen. Richard Schweikert as running mate-in-waiting, but it still smacks of the same air of desperation.

There is another reason the candidates suddenly find television debates a practical way to campaign. For the first time, they are limited to spending only $21.8 million apiece under the new campaign finance laws which provide Federal funding and prohibit private contributions. They are both finding that sum will barely pay for basic advertising and traveling, so an opportunity for free and additional exposure becomes desirable.

Miniaturizing Mass Transportation

Though the western European countries double the U.S. in acres and spades when it comes to providing clean, safe, dependable and economical mass transportation by train or bus, there is no inclination in our country to borrow from that experience and for that matter perhaps some underlying circumstances between us and the Europeans may be too disparate to make a loan worthwhile.

Since the inventions of the steam engine and the internal combustion engine, mass transportation has been a governmental function in western Europe. By one means or another, every inhabitant, even if he dwells in mountain peak isolation, is taxed to operate the system. Distances are not as great as in our country. Neither has urban sprawl yet attained the complicating status which prevails on this side of the ocean. Nor are our transatlantic cousins beset with the racial tensions which in many areas make a subway or bus ride more hazardous than taking the old stage coach through Indian territory of lore.

Since World War II's fuel and tire rationing gave U.S. mass transit its last financially sound breath, Americans have relied upon the extremely costly private automobile and public highways to move themselves to where they want to go.

This self determined solution is not as bad as some critics would have us believe, but it does have its shortcomings. It soaks up valuable land for roads and parking lots. It is wasteful of diminishing energy supplies. Engine exhausts are pollution threats. Not everyone can handle an automobile.

The solution proposed to crack that growing stalemate is a veritable latticework of government subsidized trains and buses.

It is highly politicized advocacy. Governor Milliken, for example, urges a Southeast Transportation Authority as a last chance to pull Detroit up on its feet.

It is also a fantasized argument. SETA and variations of it are likened to the fun of hiring a bus to tail gate at a football game at East Lansing or Ann Arbor rather than face the traffic frustration of driving separately.

Inevitably, some kind of mass transit system will come upon the scene because however dubious are some of the contentions made for it, the basic requirement is there and it is increasing.

The problem is in keeping the government, state and federal, from providing a river steamboat to deliver what a motor launch could service better.

Martin Wohl, a transportation specialist at the Carnegie Mellon University in Pittsburgh, urges too much attention in mass transit focuses on movement between city and suburbs and too little upon movement within the city or the suburb.

He cites Chicago as one of several sample communities where the cart is being put before the horse.

Roughly 75 per cent of the people working in downtown Chicago live within 10 miles of the Loop.

Yet for all the money lavished upon the Chicago Transit Authority, its patronage is steadily declining and its financial integrity growing more questionable each passing day.

The taxi business happens to be as large a political question in the Windy City as is the welfare debate in Michigan. City hall has regulated the supply of cabs below their demand for years.

This planned scarcity is pretty much a nationwide pattern.

Whol contends surface and subsurface transit lines in super billion cost dimensions will not meet the major problems of sort haul transit within a given territory.

To be sure it costs more to hail a cab in Chicago than to ride a CTA bus and expanding the taxi fleet simply to increase their numbers can be counterproductive.

But going by studies of traffic patterns and consumer preference, the taxi at least is a partial answer to a question for which a single reply will be inadequate.

As Whol puts it, people seem to favor riding bumper to bumper rather than shoulder to shoulder.

'Bob' Payne Has Been Good For BH Schools

Marvin W. Radom, president of Benton Harbor's K-O Products Co. and a 1936 graduate of Benton Harbor high school, appropriately calls attention to the fact that Benton Harbor is losing an outstanding educator this fall, Robert W. Payne.

Radom expresses himself as "deeply disturbed" that Payne has resigned as deputy superintendent here to take a job as assistant superintendent of Forest Hills school district east of Grand Rapids. Radom accurately states that Payne "held our schools together during all of the trials and tribulations of the past few years."

Payne did that not only four times when he served as acting superintendent but he often poured oil on troubled waters when permanent, on-the-job superintendents failed to manage Berrien county's largest and most problem-ridden school district smoothly.

The first time he was named acting superintendent was in 1968 when Superintendent Albert Johnsen resigned to go elsewhere. At that time, teachers circulated petitions asking the board of education to make Payne permanent superintendent.

For some reason that shall always remain a mystery, the board passed over a nugget on its doorstep in favor of mining for gold out in the great unknown.

Not that the superintendents since Johnsen quit have been bad necessarily, but one wonders how many fewer problems there might have been if Payne had been made permanent chief in 1968.

He has always seemed to mesh with every group involved in the schools: students, parents, teachers, board, administrators. He's had a friendly eye cast toward the taxpayers, too.

Payne would have accepted the superintendent's job in 1968, the first time he stepped into the breach as acting superintendent. But thereafter he was not interested.

Too bad. And definitely too bad that "Bob" Payne is leaving Benton Harbor. He is a competent, friendly, totally honest man who will be sorely missed.

Forest Hills schools are getting a real break in adding him to their administrative staff.

Editor,

I, and I am sure, many others are deeply disturbed that Benton Harbor Area Schools Asst. Supt. Robert Payne saw fit to leave our community. Bob held our schools together during all of the trials and tribulations of the past few decades. He acted as superintendent on several occasions, having declined the position while the Board searched for a new man. He will be missed. His many years of excellent and conscientious service will be remembered by many of us who were active in school affairs.

And his wife, Mary Lou, will be missed as well. Besides being a teacher she counseled many troubled young people at a time when they really needed help.

I, and all of their friends, wish both all of the health and happiness possible in their new positions.

'LET'S KEEP OUR IDEOLOGIES AT HOME'

Editor,

We read repeatedly reports of the conditions of poverty in the under-developed countries and in the native areas of South Africa.

Sincere and well-meaning missionaries point out to us that we would be more blessed, if we would only share some of our riches — our abundant food, our color TV, our two cars, etc. — with the poor in the world.

It is hard to disagree that we live and enjoy a life of comfort and affluence in our wonderful country.

But isn't it another case of nearly unbelievable arrogance on our parts to assume that the wealth of gadgets we treasure so highly, is a pattern of life that would bring happiness to those in other countries?

During World War II butter was rationed, so we could ship part of our production to our Russian allies. Then rumors indicated that our friends preferred lard to spread on their bread.

Now we follow our Master's exhortation to spread the Good News all over the world. And with it we spread our concepts and beliefs of civil rights, freedoms and material wealth, convinced that this is part of our mission.

For years we blamed unrest and revolution in those countries on Communist agitators, and bemoaned the deaths and miseries of the innocent civilians as much as the spread of the ideology.

Are we really in a position to claim that our ideologies are better for them, that the unrest we foment is less disastrous for them, even though we are fully convinced that our motives are inspired and pure? Reports indicate that Vietnam has less corruption and better morals since the North Vietnam takeover.

The United Nations debates show that many of the emerging nations, freed of colonial rule, act as unruly children in the family of nations. Their domestic conditions rarely reflect increased liberty for the inhabitants.

No, I don't doubt for a moment the devoted, sincere motives of our missionaries of all faiths. If they could only stress a little more the exhortation to "Give unto Caesar what is Caesar's", the development of a social system to fit their needs might progress slowly without the revolutionary strife and misery for the population.

We might find that they could live happily without our cars, refrigerators, jets and TV violence. And perhaps without our beloved individual civil liberties, even though it would be a shock to our arrogant convictions.

Let's keep our ideologies at home.

Seeks U-M seat

Upton Seeks Regent Post SJ Man Is Candidate At GOP Convention

David Upton, of St. Joseph, said Thursday he is a candidate for nomination by the Republican state convention for University of Michigan regent. Upton was nominated by the convention in 1974 for a regency but was defeated in the November general election as Democrats won two regents' posts.

The state convention will be Saturday in Grand Rapids. Upton said he will attend as a delegate from St. Joseph. He said yesterday he had notified William McLaughlin, state Republican chairman, that "I would be available on Saturday for the regency."

Upton is a former state legislator and is president of the Southwestern Michigan Abstract and Title Co. of St. Joseph. He is a 1948 graduate of U-M engineering school.

The Associated Press reported Upton is one of three men seeking two nominations for U-M regents. The other candidates are Al Sing, of Royal Oak, and Earl Gabriel, president of the Michigan Association of school boards.

Republican delegates Saturday also will nominate three candidates for Supreme court justices, two apiece for the State Board of Education, Michigan

State University board of trustees and Wayne State University Board of Governors.

The nominees will face Democratic opponents in the November general election. Incumbent Supreme Court Justices Lawrence Lindemer and James L. Ryan go into the convention without opposition.

Two circuit court judges, Joseph Swallow, of Alpena, and Richard D. Kuhn, of Oakland county, are competing for the seat now held by Chief Justice Thomas Kavanagh, a Democrat.

The most heavily contested race is for nominations for two seats at Michigan State. There are six candidates — Nick Smith, a dairy farmer from Addison; Michael Fleck, a Kalamazoo veterinarian; Robert McCauley, an engineer from Lansing; Paul Gadola, a Flint lawyer; Norman Jamieson, an insurance agent from Howell and Larry Goodrich, a salesman from Okemos.

Unopposed for the State Board of Education are Jo Saltzman, of Franklin, and Clarence Dukes, president of the Ann Arbor board of education.

Wayne State University candidates are Deanne Edgcombe, Detroit, and John Axe, Grosse Pointe Woods.

Before picking their candidates on Saturday, delegates will consider resolutions on several state issues. The thorniest, according to Jerry Roe, party executive secretary, likely will be the state's new single business tax.

The only events scheduled tonight are a two-hour reception sponsored by party leaders and caucuses for delegates from the state's 19 Congressional districts.

Henderson said: "During the time of this campaign, I want to be headed in the right direction, not only with God, but with myself. So I am asking these clergymen to pray with me and watch over my campaign."

Jobless Rate For Berrien Down Full Point In July

Berrien county's July unemployment rate dropped more than a full percentage point from the June level.

A report from Jacob Panse, southwestern Michigan labor market analyst for the Michigan Employment Security commission (MESC), shows 11.3 per cent of the civilian labor force was jobless last month compared with 12.4 per cent in June.

July's unemployment rate was the lowest for Berrien county since April when 11.2 per cent of the labor force was out of

Panse's report also revealed 65,800 persons were working, compared with 65,200 in June. The number employed was also 200 more than in July, 1975 according to Panse's figures.

A total of 8,400 people were listed as unemployed and seeking jobs in July, Panse reported. That is 800 less than June and 2,900 less than July, 1975.

Meanwhile the total civilian labor force dropped by 200 from June's figure. A total of 74,200 persons were counted in Panse's report. The total labor force available to county employers last month showed a decrease of 2,700 persons from the July, 1975 figures.

Wage and salary employment increased by 400 from June to July. Panse's figures show 58,300 persons in this category compared to 58,600 in July, 1975.

Manufacturing jobs also increased by 400 over June to 23,100 but are still 900 less than in July, 1975.

"Increases in the manufacturing sector were due to scattered gains in most durable goods industries, with primary metals showing the greatest gain (of 200)," Panse said. The food processing industry reported an increase of 100 jobs, he added, but that is relatively low compared to other years because "the poor showing of many area crops this year minimized the number of seasonal jobs available in food processing plants."

One Man Arrested; One Flees

Benton Harbor police said a man who allegedly intervened while they were arresting only man was booked on two charges after a scuffle during which the man they were originally arresting escaped from a patrol car.

Patrolmen Ken Webster and George Jensen reported they had placed a man under arrest on a charge of drunk and disorderly in the 400 block of Territorial road about 2:45 p.m. Police said a scuffle ensued with the intervenor and the man arrested on the drunk charge escaped from the patrol car. No officers were injured, but the arrested man was treated at Mercy hospital for a cut face, police said.

Police reported that units from the Berrien sheriff's department and Benton township police were called to stand by as a small crowd collected, but the crowd dispersed without incident.

Booked at the Berrien county jail on charges of obstructing police officers and resisting arrest was Charles Patterson, 21, Edwards road, Sodus township.

Benton Landfill Seeking More Acreage For Site

An attorney representing the Northwest Berrien county landfill authority told the Benton township planning commission last night the landfill authority needs another 67 acres in Benton township to continue handling Twin Cities area trash.

St. Joseph Atty. Henry Gleiss told planning commissioners the present 85-acre site just north of Ross field airport is nearly filled to capacity and requested a special-use permit to use another 67 acres adjacent to the present nine-year-old site to continue landfill operations.

The township planning commission sent the request to the land-use committee for further study and set Oct. 8 for a public hearing on the request.

The present landfill, located at the west end of Smallidge road off Crystal avenue, the cities of Benton Harbor and St. Joseph, the townships of Benton and St. Joseph, and village of Shoreham.

The present landfill is zoned for non-conforming use and the landfill authority must seek a special-use permit for an expansion of the present landfill.

Gleiss said the landfill authority, made up of two representatives from each of the five area municipalities, wants to use a 67-acre site at the corner of Smallidge and Crystal avenue — directly east of the present site. He said the authority has an option to buy the property owned by the Don Mulder estate.

The landfill authority's request apparently will be met with some opposition from residents in the area. Several residents and a planning commissioner voiced objections to the plan at the meeting last night.

Planning Commissioner

Robert Nametz, who operates a farm directly east of the proposed site, said the soil in that area was of good quality and should be put to better use than a landfill. He withdrew himself from membership on the land-use committee studying the request.

Mike Astopenia, 1819 Wood road, Early Edly, North Crystal avenue, and Charles Fites, 1849 Wood road, complained of large trucks damaging roads, waste flying off trucks and bad odors from the present landfill.

Gleiss said solid wastes at the landfill are covered with soil at the end of each day and said a state law prohibits hauling trash without covering the load.

He said the landfill authority wants to continue at the Benton township site because it is the most isolated site nearest the populated Twin Cities area.

In other action, the commission sent to committee a request by Delbert Bickers for a used car license at 2000 Red Arrow highway.

A request by Calvary Bible church, 3300 Territorial road, to combine two parcels of land it owns was also sent to committee.

Schedule Rally For Mrs. Holmes

A rally is scheduled for 5:30 this afternoon at the Benton Harbor senior citizens center, Wall and Pipestone streets, in support of Mrs. Inez Holmes who was fired Monday as a social worker with the Berrien county department of social services. Announcement was made by Sandra Herndon, a supporter of Mrs. Holmes.

Officers Must Subdue Dog Before Arresting Its Master

Benton township police said they had to subdue a large Great Dane Thursday with chemical before they arrested its master on charges of being drunk and disorderly and resisting arrest. Police said the incident occurred in the 1200 block of Pipestone road about 10:45 p.m. when they found a man being sought after a reported disturbance at a home on St. James street. Police reported the dog growled and moved toward officers. It was not hurt, and officers did not indicate what happened to the dog. Police said a brief struggle with the man ensued as he was being placed in the patrol car, but no one was injured. Booked at the Berrien county jail was Arby Gene Cobb, 35, route 2, Box 302-W, Hagar Shore road, Coloma.

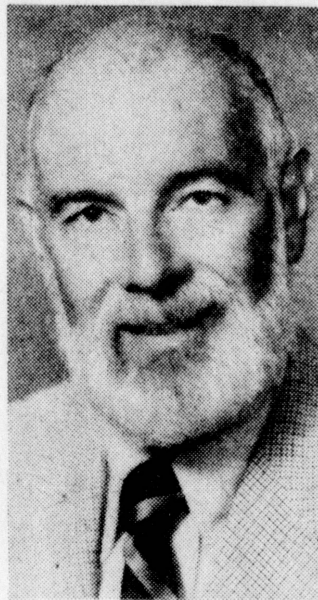

County Board To Fill Vacancy

The Berrien county board of commissioners will hold a special meeting Thursday, Sept. 2, to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Commissioner Bill Joseph, Board Chairman Leslie Fischer announced.

The meeting will be at 11 a.m. in the commission chambers at the courthouse. Joseph's resignation as commissioner for District 3 in Benton Harbor and Benton township was announced Aug. 19. An appointee will serve until the expiration of Joseph's term in December.

County Clerk Forrest H. Kesterke said the prosecutor's office has advised him that the Berrien county Democratic committee can name a candidate to replace Joseph on the Nov. 2 election ballot.

Upton Seeks Regent Post

SJ Man Is Candidate At GOP Convention

David Upton, of St. Joseph, said Thursday he is a candidate for nomination by the Republican state convention for University of Michigan regent. Upton was nominated by the convention in 1974 for a regency but was defeated in the November general election as Democrats won two regents' posts.

The state convention will be Saturday in Grand Rapids. Upton said he will attend as a delegate from St. Joseph. He said yesterday he had notified William McLaughlin, state Republican chairman, that "I would be available on Saturday for the regency."

Upton is a former state legislator and is president of the Southwestern Michigan Abstract and Title Co. of St. Joseph. He is a 1948 graduate of U-M engineering school.

The Associated Press reported Upton is one of three men seeking two nominations for U-M regents. The other candidates are Al Sing, of Royal Oak, and Earl Gabriel, president of the Michigan Association of school boards.

Republican delegates Saturday also will nominate three candidates for Supreme court justices, two apiece for the State Board of Education, Michigan State University board of trustees and Wayne State University Board of Governors.

The nominees will face Democratic opponents in the November general election.

Incumbent Supreme Court Justices Lawrence Lindemer and James L. Ryan go into the convention without opposition.

Two circuit court judges, Joseph Swallow, of Alpena, and Richard D. Kuhn, of Oakland county, are competing for the seat now held by Chief Justice Thomas Kavanagh, a Democrat.

The most heavily contested race is for nominations for two seats at Michigan State. There are six candidates — Nick Smith, a dairy farmer from Addison; Michael Fleck, a Kalamazoo veterinarian; Robert McCauley, an engineer from Lansing; Paul Gadola, a Flint lawyer; Norman Jamieson, an insurance agent from Howell and Larry Goodrich, a salesman from Okemos.

Unopposed for the State Board of Education are Jo Saltzman, of Franklin, and Clarence Dukes, president of the Ann Arbor board of education.

Wayne State University candidates are Deanne Edgecombe, Detroit, and John Axe, Grosse Pointe Woods.

Before picking their candidates on Saturday, delegates will consider resolutions on several state issues. The thorniest, according to Jerry Roe, party executive secretary, likely will be the state's new single business tax.

The only events scheduled tonight are a two-hour reception sponsored by party leaders and caucuses for delegates from the state's 19 Congressional districts.

Henderson Names Four Clergymen

Charles F. Henderson, Democratic nominee for 44th District state legislator, announced appointment of four Benton Harbor area clergymen as his political advisers.

They are: Rev. John A. Simmons, Hopewell Baptist church; Dr. Daniel Cook, Progressive Baptist church; Rev. T.N. Wilkins, Friendship Baptist church; Rev. Milton McAfee, New Bethel Baptist church.

Jobless Rate For Berrien Down Full Point In July

Berrien county's July unemployment rate dropped more than a full percentage point from the June level.

A report from Jacob Panse, southwestern Michigan labor market analyst for the Michigan Employment Security commission (MESC), shows 11.3 per cent of the civilian labor force was jobless last month compared with 12.4 per cent in June.

July's unemployment rate was the lowest for Berrien county since April when 11.2 per cent of the labor force was out of work.

Panse's report also revealed 65,800 persons were working, compared with 65,200 in June. The number employed was also 200 more than in July, 1975 according to Panse's figures.

A total of 8,400 people were listed as unemployed and seeking jobs in July, Panse reported. That is 800 less than June and 2,900 less than July, 1975.

Meanwhile the total civilian labor force dropped by 200 from June's figure. A total of 74,200 persons were counted in Panse's report. The total labor force available to county employers last month showed a decrease of 2,700 persons from the July, 1975 figures.

Wage and salary employment increased by 400 from June to July. Panse's figures show 59,300 persons in this category compared to 58,600 in July, 1975.

Manufacturing jobs also increased by 400 over June to 23,100 but are still 900 less than in July, 1975.

"Increases in the manufacturing sector were due to scattered gains in most durable goods industries, with primary metals showing the greatest gain (of 200)," Panse said. The food processing industry reported an increase of 100 jobs, he added, but that is relatively low compared to other years because "the poor showing of many area crops this year minimized the number of seasonal jobs available in food processing plants."

One Man Arrested; One Flees

Benton Harbor police said a man who allegedly intervened while they were arresting any man was booked on two charges after a scuffle during which the man they were originally arresting escaped from a patrol car.

Patrolmen Ken Webster and George Jensen reported they had placed a man under arrest on a charge of drunk and disorderly in the 400 block of Territorial road about 2:45 p.m. Police said a scuffle ensued with the intervenor and the man arrested on the drunk charge escaped from the patrol car. No officers were injured, but the arrested man was treated at Mercy hospital for a cut face, police said.

Police reported that units from the Berrien sheriff's department and Benton township police were called to stand by as a small crowd collected, but the crowd dispersed without incident.

Booked at the Berrien county jail on charges of obstructing police officers and resisting arrest was Charles Patterson, 21, Edwards road, Sodus township.

Judge Imposes 2nd Tough Sentence Involving Escape

By NICK SMITH
Staff Writer

For the second time in as many days, Berrien District Court Judge Leo Cook has imposed the maximum sentence on a charge involving escape from jail.

However, yesterday's sentence was only six months because the charge was attempting to escape Berrien county jail and not actual escape for which Cook imposed a one-year sentence on another man Wednesday.

Cook yesterday sentenced

Donald L. Carlock, 33, formerly of Benton Harbor and now living in a Chicago address, to six months in jail for attempting to escape from the jail Aug. 8, 1975.

Carlock was first charged with escaping from jail, and he pleaded guilty yesterday to the lesser charge, which carries a maximum penalty of six months in jail.

Carlock, who was a trustee, walked away from the jail last summer. He was arrested for a traffic violation last month in Niles township, police said.

Carlock told arresting officers that he moved to Chicago because too many Berrien law enforcement agents knew him. Niles township police said. He had returned to Michigan for a visit when picked up.

Carlock still has to spend about nine months in jail to complete the one year sentence handed him last June for second offense driving while intoxicated, according to court records. After that sentence has been served, Carlock will begin serving the six month sentence imposed yesterday, Cook said.

Football Hard For Wives Too

Saturday Special

The physical, emotional, and even financial punishments that go into the shaping of a career in football can be hard for football players' wives, too. At least Pam Garrison, wife of former Dallas Cowboys star running back Walt Garrison, and Terry Buoniconti, wife of the Miami Dolphins' just-retired key linebacker Nick Buoniconti, found that to be the case, though in varying degrees.

At a recent advance screening of "It's Tough to Make it in this League," a special hour-long broadcast about the hard realities of football life that will be seen at 8 p.m., EDT, Saturday, Aug. 28, on the ABC television network, Pam and Terry relive the pressures they withstood while their husbands pursued careers in pro football. The broadcast is narrated by Walt Garrison and features Nick Buoniconti and other top pro players.

Pam and Terry spoke about their personal experiences sharing in the psychological burdens of the pressure to win and keep winning, the ever-present fear of injury and of being replaced, and the haunting worry of "old age" which afflicts a player, if he manages to stay in the game, once he turns 30 years old.

Pam said that when she and Walt first met during his rookie year for the Cowboys, she knew nothing about football. On the other hand, Terry had been around Nick and the game ever since high school, when they were sweethearts, and he was a star player even then.

Pam noted that she could sense "that there were pressures on Walt right from the beginning. We met during the football season and our first major problem was that he couldn't find time to make a date with me."

One of the first adjustments she had to make was accepting the fact that Walt would be away for long stretches of time. "After we became engaged, Walt promptly left for four and a half months in the National Guard," she said. "We were married 10 days after he returned and, three weeks later, he was off again for a month in training camp."

Pam learned that, for the wife of an up-and-coming football player, it paid to be the extremely independent person she always was. "Luckily, I've always been able to get along by myself. Also, wives of other players invited me to participate in some of their organized activities — they had learned not to spend all their time wishing their husbands were home. I budgeted my time so I didn't feel too lonely. Then, when Walt was around, he didn't bring the games home with him as long as he wasn't on the starting lineup."

As Walt became more important to the team, Pam noticed that "Walt needed to talk about the game. By now, a lot of football knowledge had rubbed off on me and so I was able to help him unwind. The pressure was on Walt to excel, and to win. He always liked to do his best, but it was difficult to maintain, week after week, in front of thousands of fans. For the first time, I realized I had never seen or known of such pressures before as those brought on by football."

Terry noted an interesting fact which bolsters the self-image of professional football players. "A company once did a psychological test of football players and found that most could make it in big business because of their abilities to handle pressure. In 'It's Tough to Make it in this League," Nick comments about having to go out on the field and perform because if you don't perform and if you don't do a good job, you don't have a job. He also talks about his family depending on him making a living playing football. Nick used that pressure to give himself the energy to play a good game. His way of coping with the anxieties of winning, performing and excelling was always to play his heart out. He wanted to have fun. If anything, pressure made Nick play harder."

According to Pam and Terry, ever-present is the anxiety all wives — and players — share about the threat of injury. "It's Tough to Make it in this League" reveals that the average career in professional football lasts about four and a half years. Walt Garrison's career lasted nine years, which only increased Pam's concern. "When a player is injured, he can lose his livelihood in an instant — which leads to other problems. The birth of our son, for example, increased the anxiety in Walt. He worried about making enough money for us. There's always someone there to replace you."

"Tough to Make it in this League," an hour-long special about the realities of football life at 8 p.m., EDT, Saturday, Aug. 28, on ABC television network. Garrison serves as narrator of the documentary, with Nick Buoniconti and other prominent players interviewed.

Nick Buoniconti remarks in the broadcast that football "is a very cold game, but this is what the fan wants. The fan wants the best player possible." However, his love for the game and his great desire to play it helped Terry through the periods when Nick was playing, going to law school at night, holding another job at the same time, and through the birth of their children.

Pam said, "I was doubly aware of the tensions in Walt's career every year when the season ended. Walt would completely relax and not want to hear or talk about football. Of course, the calm only lasted a few months before beginning his training and conditioning all over again."

She was relieved when Walt decided to retire at the age of 31 — despite the fact, as Walt announces at the beginning of "It's Tough to Make it in this League," that by professional football standards, "I'm an old man." Pam said, "I was also relieved because of my previously injured knee, even though it had healed properly. In all, I felt like a weight was lifted off of me."

Terry Buoniconti did not find the pressures of professional football as acute as those of Pam Garrison, though she endured a serious problem all last season while Nick was out of the game almost entirely due to an injury. Her approach to coping with her husband's career in football as well as his new law and sportscasting careers is to share them completely. "Nick and I looked at each year in football as just one more year. We kept trying to get back to the fact that it is still only a game and Nick was going to try to do the best job possible and still have fun. It's hard, but it's worth it."

The pressure was on Walt to excel, and to win. He always liked to do his best, but it was difficult to maintain, week after week, in front of thousands of fans. For the first time, I realized I had never seen or known of such pressures before as those brought on by football."

Terry noted an interesting fact which bolsters the self-image of professional football players. "A company once did a psychological test of football players and found that most could make it in big business because of their abilities to handle pressure. In 'It's Tough to Make it in this League," Nick comments about having to go out on the field and perform because if you don't perform and if you don't do a good job, you don't have a job. He also talks about his family depending on him making a living playing football. Nick used that pressure to give himself the energy to play a good game. His way of coping with the anxieties of winning, performing and excelling was always to play his heart out. He wanted to have fun. If anything, pressure made Nick play harder."

According to Pam and Terry, ever-present is the anxiety all wives — and players — share about the threat of injury. "It's Tough to Make it in this League" reveals that the average career in professional football lasts about four and a half years. Walt Garrison's career lasted nine years, which only increased Pam's concern. "When a player is injured, he can lose his livelihood in an instant — which leads to other problems. The birth of our son, for example, increased the anxiety in Walt. He worried about making enough money for us. There's always someone there to replace you."

Nick Buoniconti remarks in the broadcast that football "is a very cold game, but this is what the fan wants. The fan wants the best player possible." However, his love for the game and his great desire to play it helped Terry through the periods when Nick was playing, going to law school at night, holding another job at the same time, and through the birth of their children.

Pam said, "I was doubly aware of the tensions in Walt's career every year when the season ended. Walt would completely relax and not want to hear or talk about football. Of course, the calm only lasted a few months before beginning his training and conditioning all over again."

She was relieved when Walt decided to retire at the age of 31 — despite the fact, as Walt announces at the beginning of "It's Tough to Make it in this League," that by professional football standards, "I'm an old man." Pam said, "I was also relieved because of his previously injured knee, even though it had healed properly. In all, I felt like a weight was lifted off of me."

Terry Buoniconti did not find the pressures of professional football as acute as those of Pam Garrison, though she endured a serious problem all last season while Nick was out of the game almost entirely due to an injury. Her approach to coping with her husband's career in football as well as his new law and sportscasting careers is to share them completely. "Nick and I looked at each year in football as just one more year. We kept trying to get back to the fact that it is still only a game and Nick was going to try to do the best job possible and still have fun. It's hard, but it's worth it."

Kalamazoo Wedding

Miss Margaret Ann Burchell and Robert W. Robinson exchanged wedding vows Aug. 7 at the First Presbyterian church, Kalamazoo.

Dr. David McShane, pastor of the church, and the Rev. William Diehl of Trinity Lutheran church, Kalamazoo, performed the ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mrs. Barbara E. Burchell and James H. Burchell of Kalamazoo. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Robinson, 1019 Church street, St. Joseph.

Miss Marg Beth Burchell, sister of the bride, was maid of honor.

Serving as best man was Paul H. Styburski. Ushers were Donald and Thomas Burchell, brothers of the bride.

A reception was held at the Kalamazoo Expressway Holiday Inn.

Following a wedding trip to Chicago, the couple is residing in Kalamazoo.

The bride, a graduate of the University of Michigan, is a dance instructor at Kalamazoo Valley Community college. Her husband is a graduate of St. Joseph high school and Western Michigan university. He is employed as a sales representative by Nestle, Inc., Kalamazoo.

Shoreham Art Fair Set

September
Event

The fifth annual Shoreham Village Art Fair will be held Sunday, Sept. 5, from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Ample parking will be provided for the fair which will be held on the "Acres of Art" on the Johnson-Kinney-Thurkettle and Card grounds, 3170-3180 South Lakeshore drive in Shoreham.

Nearly 50 artists and craftsmen will participate in the fair which will feature quilting, scratch-work, tile, blown glass, watercolors, oils, acrylics and woodcarvings.

A special feature of the fair will be Gerald Everett's with his welded nuts and bolts together with cotter pins made into unique shapes of "people doing ordinary things."

Nancy Eversole, "The Kentucky Woman," will entertain throughout the day with her Appalachian songs accompanying herself on the dulcimer.

A sidewalk cafe will be catered by Miller's Catering service of Stevensville.

Rain date for the fair is Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 6, according to Mrs. F.V. Culp, chairman of the planning committee.

Among the artists from four states planning to participate are John and Merrill Clark of Niles with their unique natural plant materials imbedded in Vesperglass screens, plaques, lamp shades and other items. They will use a large van at the fair where they can show the visitor the objects with electric lights.

Free Ear Piercing

Plus Membership In Our Exclusive Pierced Earring Club!

Your ears pierced FREE when you purchase your $12 stainless steel studs. This entitles you to your membership in our exclusive earring club. You purchase 8 pair of earrings, the 9th pair is free (your stainless studs considered your first purchase pair)

There are many types of ear piercers on the market today. Rimes uses the safest, most accurate piercing 'gun'. It shoots a "Surgical Quality" stainless steel stud into the ear. Unlike a 14-k gold earring, which has a nickel content that can cause nickel sensitivity for the rest of your life, the studs Rimes use are absolutely non-toxic and non allergenic. You must sign a consent form, and if under 18 years old, be accompanied by a parent or guardian. No children under 8 please.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

The Answer Was Christian

Dear Ann Landers: You gave a Jewish answer to a Christian lady. Small wonder you goofed. You told "One of the Millions": "A place in heaven is not for sale. And neither is peace of mind. There are no short cuts or free passes to the pearly gates."

According to Jesus, a seat in heaven CAN be bought. In Matthew, Chapter 25, verses 31 to 36 and 40, while answering Peter's, Andrew's, John's and James's questions about the Second Coming, Jesus said, "When the son of man shall come in his glory and before him shall be gathered all nations, and he shall separate them one from another, the sheep from the goats, then shall the king say unto them on his right hand, 'I was hungrier and ye gave me meat and drink. I was a stranger and ye took me in. Naked, and ye clothed me. I was sick and ye visited me. I was in prison and ye came unto me.' And the king shall answer and say unto them, verily I say unto you, inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

I hope you get the picture. — Unemployed College Grad In Flint

Dear Grad: I checked your answer with someone who was sure to give me a Christian answer. This is what Father Theodore Hesburgh, President of the University of Notre Dame, had to say:

"Your answer to 'One Of The Millions' was completely correct. The reader who was critical put a different interpretation on the word 'buying.'"

"Buying generally means money, and this is what you were rejecting. Your reader was making reference to the fact that we can 'earn' our way to heaven by loving God and our neighbor with a whole heart. Jesus identified Himself with the poor, the hungry, the weak and those in prison. He told us that in helping them, we are helping Him."

(P.S. I hope you and all those other unemployed college grads find work soon.)

Wasted Years

Dear Ann Landers: I can't stand this problem anymore. My parents were divorced 15 years ago, after 35 years of marriage. Dad married a younger woman and they have a very good life. She treats him swell and they mind their own business.

My sister and I had nothing to do with Dad for 12 years. Sis decided three years ago to let bygones be bygones. In the meantime, Mom has turned into a self-pitying, vindictive shrew. Her main interest in life is to find out if we are seeing Dad and his new wife. Mom has alienated all her friends. She does nothing but smoke cigarettes, complain about her health and bum-rap Dad.

I'm getting all the heat now because my sister and her husband refuse to listen. What I want to know is how much I owe my mother. Sis and I are in our 40s. Dad is over 70. Must I ignore him for the rest of my life just to please my mother? — Tortured In Salem

Dear Tort: What a waste of 15 years! Your sister, on the other hand, wasted 12, but at least she came to her senses.

"Shanghai: The New China," is the film to be shown Monday, Aug. 30, at 12:15 p.m. in the auditorium of the Benton Harbor public library.

The film shows how well the Chinese traditions have been able to survive the Communist revolution and the role of the individual in the present system.

The public is invited and anyone wishing to bring a lunch may do so.

Books added to the library collection include "The President's Mistress," Patrick Anderson; "The Woman Said Yes," Jessamyn West; "No Left Turn," Joseph Schott; "Intent on Laughter," John Bailey; "Detroit: I Do Mind Dying," Dan Georgakas; "The Unseen Revolution," Peter Drucker; "Welcome to Fire Island," Jack Nichols, and "Stretching Man's Mind," Margaret Harmon.

Well-Dressed

FOR SATURDAY, AUG. 28, 1976

ARIES (March 21-April 19) This will be a pleasant and harmonious day for you if you take a middle-of-the-road attitude and let destiny run its course.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Do something out of doors today that requires you to be active both in the mental and physical sense. It doesn't have to be strenuous.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Involve yourself in activities where you can relax and enjoy yourself. Don't take life too seriously today.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Companions will follow your example today. If you're calm and at peace with yourself it will put them at ease.

LEO (July 2-Aug. 22) You're likely to find yourself a bit restless today and may require a change of scenery. Go somewhere different. Be sure it's a quiet spot.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may rub shoulders socially with one who could later be an asset to your businesswise. Be alert for tips.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't let the management of matters that are personally important slip from your hands today. Stay on top of things.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) If at all possible today, avoid crowds or noisy groups. You need to be alone with your very special someone.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll find you'll be in a rather gregarious mood again today. Plan something that takes you where the action is.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You can do your image a lot of good today by not taking yourself too seriously. Let others see you're a very easy guy to get along with.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Judge others as you'd like them to judge you and you'll end up winning new friends today.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Someone is looking out for your interests today, though you may not know it immediately. It's regarding something quite important.

Dr. Lester Coleman

For the past year and a half since I had surgery on my bladder I have been having repeated attacks of cystitis. With medicine it gets better, but then it returns. What am I doing wrong? — Mrs. D.D.B., Ind.

Dear Mrs. B.:

You are doing nothing wrong since you are not neglecting your problem and are pursuing it with drugs. You did not, however, mention in your letter whether or not you had sought the expert advice of a urologist — a specialist in diseases of the genito-urinary tract.

With cystoscopic examination and cultures of the urine, specific antibiotics can be found to control the infection. Then more intensive work must be done to track down its origin.

Only in this way can one possibly prevent recurring episodes of cystitis.

There is a tendency for people to disregard their problems during a phase when the urinary symptoms are not acute. When the problem returns, patients want to pursue it again.

In between periods of infection is the best time to track down the cause of the condition you describe.

Is there any truth to the idea that there can be a loss of hair in people who are on a crash diet? — Mr. J.G., Tex.

Dear Mr. G.:

One's first reaction to such a relationship is to deny it. Yet a recent study by two military physicians showed that a group of their patients had lost a great deal of hair two to five months after starting a rigorous weight-reducing program.

The conclusion was that the severe caloric restrictions caused an inadequate supply of energy to the roots of the hair. The encouraging word in all this is "temporary."

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH...

Nail biting is a sign of tension in children. Punishment or shaming the child does not help solve the problem. It may even tend to exaggerate it. A better approach would be to track down the cause of the child's inner tensions.

In looking over our collection of hands we find one from the Bridge World of May, 1940. It is from an article by J.C. Stablein entitled, "Precaution."

The author does not give the bidding or the East-West hands, but comments that they probably used precaution in only getting to five spades.

The queen of diamonds is opened and South ducks in dummy. The precaution was necessary to guard against finding West with all six diamonds.

We have taken the liberty of making up our own East-West hands. We put the same cautious declarer in the South seat. He ducks the first diamond and now look what happens to him.

West continues with the deuce of diamonds. East ruffs that lead. He had started with exactly one diamond. Then East leads a club. West ruffs and South's safety play has become and unsafety play.

Ask the Jacobys

A Vermont reader wants to know what we bid with:
▲ xx ♥ xxx ♦ AK xx ♠ AK x after our right-hand opponents opens one heart?

This is an easy one. We pass irrespective of vulnerability. This may turn out to be losing action, but a double or a two-diamond overcall may land us in really bad trouble. Remember that the fact that a hand is worth an opening bid does not mean that it is worth an overcall.

has been the subject of so much debate it's difficult to sort out fact from fiction.

Three statements can be made without too much fear of contradiction:

— Television has greatly broadened the horizons of young viewers; they know things — and words — that children of earlier generations didn't learn until years later.

— Some children watch television too much and read too little.

— There is no national television program now on the air that will really help your child learn to read. If the schools aren't doing their job, you will have to teach your children to read at home.

Let's discuss that last point first.

In 1971, a nationwide end-run play began to try to teach millions of children to read outside the schools. The Children's Television Workshop, developer of the already-successful together to form words. Although designed for use in the home, by the second year nearly 20,000 schools were bringing it into the classrooms. It was being watched at home by several million elementary school age children. And by 1972 an estimated one million preschoolers were watching, too (including a member of my own family, who profited immensely).

"Sesame Street" also began teaching letter sounds to prepare children for later viewing of "Electric Company."

To the reading establishment, this development was as welcome as feathers in an omelette. Dr. Kenneth Smith of the University of Arizona, for instance, told the Tucson Star that "Sesame Street" should stop teaching letter sounds and teach sight words instead.

The current version of "Electric Company" is Dick and Jane restored to life. It is now slow-moving, boring, and based on

You can provide more really useful reading instruction in an hour than "Electric Company" now provides in a month.

Back to point one: the fact that television is broadening the horizons of children is destroying one look-say's favorite arguments against intensive phonics.

CHAPTER FIVE

Television's effect on the reading skills of young children

"Sesame Street," produced a new program called "Electric Company."

In the beginning, it was great. Most of each lively, interesting program was devoted to letter sounds, and how to put sounds teaching whole words. "Phonics" is now used in a manner identical to the usual school programs: very ineffectively.

So, parents, don't turn to the TV to teach your child to read.

"Phonics teaches word-calling," they say. "Children can pronounce all the words, but they don't know what they mean."

Young children's mental vocabularies have increased so greatly with the impact of television that in their normal reading material they are not likely to come across many words they won't recognize after they pronounce them.

we're exaggerating, but not much.)

Look-say authors acknowledge that it takes a very long time to learn words with that system.

One supplemental reader, designed for children who have finished their regular fourth grade books, has a teacher's note on the inside back cover which warns that the book includes 28 new words "beyond the fourth grade level."

Those words — beyond the fourth grade level, remember — include jet, airport, fog, television, taxi and flaps.

Is it any wonder we're in trouble? Is it any wonder you may have to teach your child to read at home?

Finally, the point that some children watch television too much and read too little: When people, of whatever age, have learned to read well enough to like reading, they don't have to depend on TV reruns for their entertainment.

(Next: Practice Makes Perfect)

'The current version of 'Electric Company' is Dick and Jane restored to life.'

has been the subject of so much debate it's difficult to sort out fact from fiction.

SEM Is Powerful U-M Tool

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — An unconventional microscope at the University of Michigan can make a tomato leaf look like a mythical landscape and turn a tiny insect into a fearsome monster.

University spokesmen say the scanning electron microscope is one of the most powerful research tools of modern science because it can make objects appear 50 to 50,000 times larger.

For a conventional optical microscope, the useful magnification range is up to 1,000 times, said Peggie Hollingsworth, a research associate at U-M's Scanning Electron Microscopy-Electron Microprobe Analyzer Laboratory.

She said the SEM bears little resemblance in appearance or operation to the optical microscope generally used in high school science classes.

"The conventional microscope depends on visible light and glass lenses whereas the SEM works more like a radar set," she said. "In the SEM, a finely focused beam of electrons is scanned back and forth across the specimen, and electrons which 'bounce' off the specimen are collected."

The resulting signal is used to control the brightness of a television tube. The image develops gradually on the TV tube as its beam scans the viewing screen, Ms. Hollingsworth said.

"Magnification can be changed instantly and continuously, giving the 'zoom' effect so familiar in TV," she said.

She said the microscope was particularly useful for studying the structure of plant and animal tissues, which ordinary microscopes can't bring into sharp focus.

The SEM has proved useful for U-M scholars in a wide range of disciplines, said W.C. Bigelow, professor of materials and metallurgical engineering and director of laboratories.

"Each day the SEM helps fit new pieces into the research puzzle," he said.

Today is Friday, Aug. 27, the 240th day of 1976. There are 126 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1945, American troops began landing in Japan at the end of World War II. It was the first foreign occupation of the country in modern times.

On this date: In 55 B.C., Roman forces under Julius Caesar invaded Britain.

In 1859, the first oil well in the United States was drilled near Titusville, Pa.

In 1862, the Italian patriot, Giuseppe Garibaldi, was seized as he was on his way to capture Rome.

In 1928, the Kellogg-Briand pact to outlaw war was signed in Paris.

In 1939, Nazi Germany demanded Danzig and the Polish Corridor.

In 1967, 18 American skydivers were killed when they plunged into Lake Erie off Huron, Ohio.

In 1969, An Israeli commando force penetrated deep into Egyptian territory to stage a mortar attack on a regional military headquarters in the Nile valley of upper Egypt.

Ten years ago: French President Charles de Gaulle arrived in Ethiopia from Somalia, where his visit had been marred by bloody rioting.

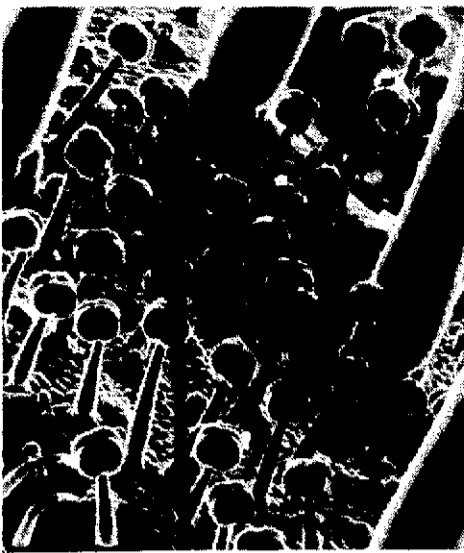

Five years ago: A coup attempted in the African country of Chad failed. The government accused Egypt of playing a role in the attempt and broke diplomatic relations.

One year ago: Deposed Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia died in his palace at the age of 81.

Today's birthday: Economist Walter Heller is 61 years old.

Thought for today: Save a boyfriend for a rainy day and another in case it doesn't rain — Mac West, born 1892.

Centennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, the British rapidly overwhelmed American forces in the Battle of Long Island, with 1,500 American troops killed, wounded and captured and English and Hessian losses at about 400.

TOMATO PLANT LEAF: The underside of a tomato plant leaf taken with the University of Michigan scanning electron microscope by botanists presents this peculiar effect. Troopers On Detroit Freeways

By Associated Press
Michigan State Police will patrol Detroit freeways starting at noon today to help free up more Detroit police for the city's war on youths violence.

The State Police patrols begin two days after an 18-year-old Grrosse Pointe Woods youth was shot in the chest when his car was stranded on the Lodge Freeway.

Mark Hosea and five friends were on their way home from a Detroit Tigers' baseball game Wednesday when their car had a flat. Hosea said he was approached by a group of youths he thought were offering to help change the tire.

Hosea said he talked to the youths and that they left saying they would try to find a crowbar and return to help him. When they returned, Hosea said one of them pulled a gun. Hosea said he didn't feel like being robbed, so he turned and walked away. He was shot in the chest. He is listed in stable condition in a Detroit-area hospital.

"Detroit's citizens and visitors are entitled to assurances of safe travel," Gov. William Milliken said. "Under present circumstances, the city is unable to patrol freeways within Detroit because it is required to assign its law enforcement manpower elsewhere."

Milliken said that the city of Detroit will have no vitality "if its lifelines are in jeopardy."

In another move to aid Detroit's fight against juvenile crime, the Wayne County Board of Commissioners Thursday voted to spend nearly $243,000 to expand juvenile court facilities. The Wayne County Commissioners voted the extra funds to hire new judges, referees, prosecutors and other staff for juvenile court. The decision was in response to a request by Juvenile Court Judge James Lincoln for more personnel to handle the large increase in cases resulting from the Detroit police crack-down on juvenile crime.

Milliken said he is developing proposals for increased State Police patrols throughout Michigan. At the present, state police patrol only non-city freeways while the individual police forces patrol freeways and roads in their cities.

State Budget Director Gerald Miller, who met with Milliken this week on the question, said existing troops would be assigned to the freeways and paid overtime and daily expenses costs. Estimates are the patrol will be manned by 30 troopers at cost of $200,000 to $300,000 for 3 days, said state police business director Abraham Takahashi. He said state police are now planning to continue the patrol for only 30 days.

New Cars In Full Swing

DETROIT (AP) — Production of 1977-model cars will move into high gear next month with the industry planning to build 751,000 units, the highest September output in four years.

But the industry's robust production schedules, reported Thursday by the trade weekly Automotive News, rest on the outcome of contract negotiations between Ford Motor Co. and the United Auto Workers.

The UAW has selected the No. 2 automaker as its target for a strike if a settlement is not reached before current industry pacts expire Sept. 14.

Barring a work stoppage, planned output for the month would be up 11 per cent from a year ago, when 675,000 cars were assembled, and represent the industry's best September since 1972, when output hit 753,000 units.

Auto output for this month was estimated at 540,000. August production normally is low due to temporary plant shutdowns to prepare for assembly of new models.

Production this week was estimated at 156,888 cars, up 29 per cent from 121,864 a week ago and 149,390 this week last year.

Two assembly plants remain down for model changeovers this week, while another five began 1977 production.

Ford's San Jose, Calif., plant, the last U.S. auto assembly facility to close out 1976-model output, builds its last 1976 car on Friday and will begin 1977 production on Monday.

U.S. car output for the calendar year to-date was put at 5,837,616 units, up from 4,123,641 in 1975.

U.S. truck production for the week was estimated at 58,436 units, compared with 53,862 last week and 44,627 a year ago. Output for the calendar year was put at 2,012,458, compared with 1,422,487 in 1975.

Lockheed Scandal Is Forcing Dutch Prince Into Retirement

THE HAGUE, The Netherlands (AP) — Government leaders and Queen Juliana stood together today to protect the Dutch monarchy from the disgrace of her husband's involvement in the Lockheed scandal.

Highly placed sources said the queen endorsed the prince's decision to force Prince Bernhard, her 65-year-old consort, into retirement. Official spokesmen said none of the five parties in Premier Joop den Uyl's left-center coalition government wanted the queen to abdicate.

The premier announced to parliament and the shocked Dutch people Thursday that Bernhard was resigning from all his public and private offices because of the report of an investigation into allegations that Lockheed Aircraft Corp. paid him $1.1 million to influence the Dutch armed forces to buy its aircraft.

The three-man commission concluded that the prince, whose chief government office was inspector general of the armed forces, had been "extremely imprudent and unwise" in his dealings with the U.S. firm.

The commission said it could find no hard evidence that Bernhard received the money. He has denied it. But the commission said it could not rule out the possibility the money reached him without being recorded in the royal household's books.

A 230-page report on the six-month investigation accused Bernhard of damaging the national interest, failing to reject improper attempts to win his influence, soliciting commissions on potential government orders and placing his country's aircraft procurement program in "a dubious light."

The prince, in his letter of resignation to the government, accepted full responsibility for his actions. He said the commission's report "has convinced me that my relations with Lockheed, in my friendship with many years with several highly placed officials of the company, have developed along wrong lines."

The posts he relinquished included seats on the boards of KLM, the national airline, and the Dutch-German VFW-Fokker Aircraft Works.

Despite the storm surrounding the royal family, official spokesmen said there was no constitutional crisis in the offing. There had been speculation in the Dutch press that the queen, who has a huge private fortune, might hand the crown on to her heir, Crown Princess Beatrix, if Bernhard's name was not cleared. But the

Spending Lid To Stay On Ballot

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Board of State Canvassers has refused to reconsider its decision to allow a proposal limiting state spending on the Nov. 2 ballot.

The board's action Thursday followed a request from attorneys for Rep. Roy Spencer, R-Attica, and the Michigan Education Association. Attorney James White, representing the MEA, said the group will decide "in the next couple of days" whether to take the matter to court.

The measure would limit state taxes to an amount equal to 8.3 per cent of total personal income in the state. The board ruled Monday that the proposal has enough signatures from registered voters on petitions to be put on the ballot.

But White and Stuart Hubbell, representing Spencer, argued that the proposal substantially alters the state constitution by changing the way the state raises money.

Ballot proposals that alter the constitution must state on the petitions which section will be altered. The two attorneys argued that the petitions circulated for this proposal did not do so and therefore are invalid.

But Charles Hackney of the state attorney general's office said that since the proposal does not change any specific language, the petitions were properly designed.

Gasoline Up

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The average price of regular gasoline climbed to a record high average of 62.9 cents a gallon this week, according to the Michigan Auto Club. The club's weekly survey found the price of a gallon of regular fuel was up three-tenths of a cent from last week and is now two-tenths of a cent above the previous all-time high set Aug. 4.

Debate Plans Are Taking Shape

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiators for President Ford and Jimmy Carter are taking proposals for a series of televised debates back to the presidential candidates, with prospects likely for an initial debate in mid-September.

Representatives for both camps reported substantial progress toward arrangements for the debates after a 3½-hour meeting Thursday with officials of the League of Women Voters, which has offered to sponsor the sessions. However neither side would discuss specifics.

The group was to meet again next Wednesday to iron out details.

All involved agreed that there definitely would be presidential campaign debates — the first since the 1960 meetings between John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon — and that the first debate would be sometime next month.

Ford has been pushing for a first debate shortly after Labor Day, while Carter has favored holding it Sept. 28, as originally proposed by the league.

With both sides talking of movement toward a settlement, it seemed likely that the initial debate would be scheduled sometime between the days proposed by each candidate.

Jody Powell, Carter's spokesman, indicated that the format of the 1976 debates would be similar to that of 1960, with panels of reporters questioning each candidate in turn.

In addition to proposing that the first debate be held on Sept. 8, 9 or 10, Ford had recommended that it deal with national defense issues. William Ruckelshaus, the former attorney general who is one of the Ford negotiators, declined to discuss whether the Ford camp had backed off that original proposal.

"That's too specific for us to get into at this point," he said. Earlier, Powell had dismissed Ford's outline of the first debate as "a public relations effort" not to be taken seriously — a claim rejected by Dean Burch, another Ford representative, who told reporters before the negotiating session. "It was very serious, indeed."

Newton Minow, co-chairman of the League's debate project and a former chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, said Thursday's session had been "very encouraging and very constructive."

But he, too, declined to discuss specifics, saying there would be no announcement on terms for the debates until full agreement is reached.

Spokesmen for both Ford and Carter said they were under no obligation to take the league up on its offer to sponsor the debates, but both indicated that they probably would agree to league sponsorship unless there was some compelling reason against doing so.

Meanwhile, the league's participation remained under a legal cloud, with the Federal Election Commission to decide Monday whether any federal campaign financing laws might be violated.

The commission was told by staff lawyers Thursday that the league's sponsorship of the debates would only violate campaign laws if union or corporate funds were used to underwrite the sessions.

New Cars In Full Swing

DETROIT (AP) — Production of 1977-model cars will move into high gear next month with the industry planning to build 751,000 units, the highest September output in four years.

But the industry's robust production schedules, reported Thursday by the trade weekly Automotive News, rest on the outcome of contract negotiations between Ford Motor Co. and the United Auto Workers.

The UAW has selected the No. 2 automaker as its target for a strike if a settlement is not reached before current industry pacts expire Sept. 14.

Barring a work stoppage, planned output for the month would be up 11 per cent from a year ago, when 675,000 cars were assembled, and represent the industry's best September since 1972, when output hit 753,000 units.

Auto output for this month was estimated at 540,000. August production normally is low due to temporary plant shutdowns to prepare for assembly of new models.

Production this week was estimated at 155,888 cars, up 29 per cent from 121,084 a week ago and 149,380 this week last year.

Two assembly plants remain down for model changeovers this week, while another five began 1977 production.

Ford's San Jose, Calif., plant, the last U.S. auto assembly facility to close out 1976-model output, builds its last 1976 car on Friday and will begin 1977 production on Monday.

U.S. car output for the calendar year to-date was put at 5,637,616 units, up from 4,123,641 in 1975.

U.S. truck production for the week was estimated at 58,436 units, compared with 53,862 last week and 46,827 a year ago. Output for the calendar year was put at 2,012,458, compared with 1,422,487 in 1975.

Lockheed Scandal Is Forcing Dutch Prince Into Retirement

THE HAGUE, The Netherlands (AP) — Government leaders and Queen Juliana stood together today to protect the Dutch monarchy from the disgrace of her husband's involvement in the Lockheed scandal.

Highly placed sources said the queen endorsed the government's decision to force Prince Bernhard, her 65-year-old consort, into retirement. Official spokesmen said none of the five parties in Premier Joop den Uyl's left-center coalition government wanted the queen to abdicate.

The premier announced to parliament and the shocked Dutch people Thursday that Bernhard was resigning from all his public and private offices

Spending Lid To Stay On Ballot

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Board of State Canvassers has refused to reconsider its decision to allow a proposal limiting state spending on the Nov. 2 ballot.

The board's action Thursday followed a request from attorneys for Rep. Roy Spencer, R-Attica, and the Michigan Education Association. Attorney James White, representing the MEA, said the group will decide "in the next couple of days" whether to take the matter to court.

The measure would limit state taxes to an amount equal to 8.3 per cent of total personal income in the state. The board ruled Monday that the proposal has enough signatures from registered voters on petitions to be put on the ballot.

But White and Stuart Hubbell, representing Spencer, argued that the proposal substantially alters the state constitution by changing the way the state raises money.

Ballot proposals that alter the constitution must state on the petitions which section will be altered. The two attorneys argued that the petitions circulated for this proposal did not do so and therefore are invalid.

But Charles Hackney of the state attorney general's office said that since the proposal does not change any specific language, the petitions were properly designed.

Gasoline Up

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The average price of regular gasoline climbed to a record high average of 62.9 cents a gallon this week, according to the Michigan Auto Club. The club's weekly survey found the price of a gallon of regular fuel was up three-tenths of a cent from last week and is now two-tenths of a cent above the previous all-time high set Aug. 4.

because of the report of an investigation into allegations that Lockheed Aircraft Corp. paid him $1.1 million to influence the Dutch armed forces to buy its aircraft.

The three-man commission concluded that the prince, whose chief government office was inspector general of the armed forces, had been "extremely imprudent and unwise" in his dealings with the U.S. firm.

The commission said it could find no hard evidence that Bernhard received the money. He has denied it. But the commission said it could not rule out the possibility the money reached him without being recorded in the royal household's books.

A 240-page report on the six-month investigation accused Bernhard of damaging the national interest, failing to reject improper attempts to win his influence, soliciting commissions on potential government orders and placing his country's aircraft procurement program in "a dubious light."

The prince, in his letter of resignation to the government, accepted full responsibility for his actions. He said the commission's report "has convinced me that my relations with Lockheed, in my friendship of many years with several highly placed officials of the company, have developed along wrong lines."

The posts he relinquished included seats on the boards of KLM, the national airline, and the Dutch-German VFW-Fokker Aircraft Works.

Despite the storm surrounding the royal family, official spokesmen said there was no constitutional crisis in the offing. There had been speculation in the Dutch press that the queen, who has a huge private fortune, might hand the crown on to her heir, Crown Princess Beatrix, if Bernhard's name was not cleared. But the

Debate Plans Are Taking Shape

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiators for President Ford and Jimmy Carter are taking proposals for a series of televised debates back to the presidential candidates, with prospects likely for an initial debate in mid-September.

Representatives for both camps reported substantial progress toward arrangements for the debates after a 3½-hour meeting Thursday with officials of the League of Women Voters, which has offered to sponsor the sessions. However neither side would discuss specifics.

The group was to meet again next Wednesday to iron out details.

All involved agreed that there definitely would be presidential campaign debates — the first since the 1960 meetings between John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon — and that the first debate would be sometime next month.

Ford has been pushing for a first debate shortly after Labor Day, while Carter has favored holding it Sept. 28, as originally proposed by the league.

With both sides talking of movement toward a settlement, it seemed likely that the initial debate would be scheduled sometime between the days proposed by each candidate.

Jody Powell, Carter's spokesman, indicated that the format of the 1976 debates would be similar to that of 1960, with panels of reporters questioning each candidate in turn.

In addition to proposing that the first debate be held on Sept. 8, 9 or 10, Ford had recommended that it deal with national defense issues. William Ruckelshaus, the former attorney general who is one of the Ford negotiators, declined to discuss whether the Ford camp had backed off that original proposal.

"That's too specific for us to get into at this point," he said. Earlier, Powell had dismissed Ford's outline of the first debate as "a public relations effort" not to be taken seriously — a claim rejected by Dean Burch, another Ford representative, who told reporters before the negotiating session, "It was very serious, indeed."

Newton Minow, co-chairman of the League's debate project and a former chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, said Thursday's session had been "very encouraging and very constructive."

But he, too, declined to discuss specifics, saying there would be no announcement on terms for the debates until full agreement is reached.

Spokesmen for both Ford and Carter said they were under no obligation to take the league up on its offer to sponsor the debates, but both indicated that they probably would agree to league sponsorship unless there was some compelling reason against doing so.

Meanwhile, the league's participation remained under a legal cloud, with the Federal Election Commission to decide Monday whether any federal campaign financing laws might be violated.

The commission was told by staff lawyers Thursday that the league's sponsorship of the debates would only violate campaign laws if union or corporate funds were used to underwrite the sessions.

Liza Minnelli's 'New Look' Is Straight From 1946

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — "It's not the company," said Liza Minnelli as she yawned deeply. "It's just that when I sing a lot without warming up my throat I have to yawn."

She had been singing a great deal that morning. Portraying a band vocalist circa 1946, she performed endless versions of a rehearsal scene with Robert DeNiro, who plays the band leader-husband in "New York, New York." Each scene was different as director Martin Scorsese encouraged the stars to supply their own words in the marital breakup.

They had been working in the razz-dazz Gold Ballroom of the downtown Biltmore Hotel. Now Liza was in an upstairs suite testing costumes with Theodora Van Runkle ("Bonnie and Clyde") and hair styles with Sidney Guillardoff, who designed for Garbo, Garland, Garson and other MGM queens.

The superstar treatment, for sure. But Minnelli does things that belie her superstar status. Like yawning in an interview.

"I'm tired but I feel great," she said of the morning's work. "Marty encourages us to 'improv,' and it's much harder than just reading lines. You have to THINK (caps THINK). Exhausting."

Guillardoff had devised a hair style that harked right back to the Forties — well-coiffed bangs and a long fall gathered in a snood. Liza looked like a fourth Andrews Sister.

"We've tried to make everything authentic about this picture," she said. "The hair styles, the clothes, the music. I even developed a new voice for the songs. I studied the singers of the period and borrowed a lot from Lee Wiley, Doris Day and Lena Horne."

"Band singers had their own style in those days. They used a lot of vibrato and pronounced all the R's. They were meant to sing the lyrics clearly without too much style."

She demonstrated by belting the morning's song, Harold Arlen's "Taking a Chance on Love," in familiar Minnelli style, then toning it down in a manner that smacked of Helen O'Connell and Marion Hutton. She also showed off a singing gesture she had picked up from old-movie watching — a palm-up cupped hand moving outward from the chest.

Liza said that Scorsese had mentioned "New York, New York" to her more than two years ago.

"At that time it was all the man's story, how he went from band leader to record producer in the early years of rock and roll," she said. "There were two girls in the script, singers who had worked for him. I said I would be interested in the picture if the woman's role could be developed to show what happened behind the bandstand."

"I saw dozens of musicals of the period. All of Daddy's, and lots of others. I saw 'Orchestra Wives' three times."

Daddy, of course, is Vincent Minnelli, with whom she made her last film, "A Matter of Time."

"It was really interesting working with him for the first time," she said. "I found out things I never before. For the first time I saw him blow his top."

"Not at me or Ingrid (Bergman). The job in Italy decided not to work before the holidays and they ruined six days' film. Other movies lost their film, too. Daddy was beside himself. 'How can they do such a thing!' he demanded. It's not so hard on actors to do retakes; they feel they can improve their performances, anyway. But for a director and a cinematographer to recapture the mood and the look of scenes is murder."

Next for Liza: a stage musical, "In Person," which she'll play next year in San Francisco, Los Angeles and New York.

Guillardoff had devised a hair style that harked right back to the Forties — well-coiffed bangs and a long fall gathered in a snood. Liza looked like a fourth Andrews Sister.

"We've tried to make everything authentic about this picture," she said. "The hair styles, the clothes, the music. I even developed a new voice for the songs. I studied the singers of the period and borrowed a lot from Lee Wiley, Doris Day and Lena Horne.

"Band singers had their own style in those days. They used a lot of vibrato and pronounced all the R's. They were meant to sing the lyrics clearly without too much style."

She demonstrated by belting the morning's song, Harold Arlen's "Taking a Chance on Love," in familiar Minnelli style, then toning it down in a manner that smacked of Helen O'Connell and Marion Hutton. She also showed off a singing gesture she had picked up from old-movie watching — a palm-up cupped hand moving outward from the chest.

MANY EARLY American anthems were new world adaptations of English melodies. "The Liberty Tree," regarded as the first American national anthem, was sung to the British martial tune "Hearts of Oak." Written by John Dickinson and first published in 1768 in the Boston Gazette, the words included the phrase, "by uniting we stand, by dividing we fall." The World Almanac recalls.

Democrats Cool To Kavanagh

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Chief Supreme Court Justice Thomas G. Kavanagh, outspoken before on controversial issues, is playing his own convictions and ignoring traditional Democratic Party campaign rules.

Now, seeking the party nomination for re-election, he is suffering for his independence, as Democrats threaten to deny him their endorsement for the November election.

They say no one dislikes Kavanagh and call him a "capable jurist," but he just doesn't have the party devotion they say he should.

The verdict will come in voting Sunday, the second day of the state party convention in Detroit. The vote, and the dealings that lead up to it, promise to enliven an otherwise routine rubberstamp of Democratic nominees for statewide office.

Kavanagh, 59, who got the party nomination without a hitch eight years ago, will be competing with Wayne County Circuit Court Judge Roman S. Gribbs for the party endorsement for another eight-year term on the Michigan Supreme Court.

It may be rough going. Top party leaders, including chairman Morley Winograd, have threatened the party may deny him their blessing. He has irked Democratic loyalists and infuriated party leadership by refusing to campaign for other Democrats seeking a Supreme Court spot, and by letting himself be pictured in GOP Justice Lawrence Lindemer's campaign literature.

"It's just that Kavanagh has left people with the impression that the total makeup of the court is not a concern of his, that if you're an incumbent you go along with the club and don't rock the boat in any way," says Sam Fishman, a national committeeman and United Auto Workers CAP council director. "That's not where we come from."

Winograd said Thursday he thought Gribbs has more support from delegates than does Kavanagh, though others, like national committeeman, Stuart Hertzberg, say it's still not clear whether Gribbs can steal the nomination. But Hertzberg says there is "a great deal of unhappiness" among the 3,000-plus delegates who will be on the Cobo Hall convention floor.

Some Democrats, however, say the party may be handing the eight-year Supreme Court seat to the Republicans by giving Gribbs, a former Detroit mayor, the endorsement, since under legal provisions the incumbent Kavanagh will be on the ballot with or without the party's nod.

That would split the Democratic vote and help the Republican nominee, to be chosen this weekend in a Grand Rapids GOP convention.

Other Democrats, however, see the November election as their chance to regain a majority on the bench that they lost following the appointments of two Republicans in the past year.

They are angry that Kavanagh will not give an incumbent's endorsement to Blair Moody and Charles Kaufman, both Wayne County Circuit Court judges, who are expected to get the Dems' other nominations Sunday. They will oppose GOP incumbents James Ryan and Lawrence Lindemer for their respective two-year and six-year terms.

Kavanagh says it is both unseemly and improper for a justice on an ostensibly nonpartisan court to campaign for or against anyone because of their party affiliation. He calls all four — Moody, Kaufman, Lindemer and Ryan — "great" and "impeccable guys."

Milk Of State Mothers Being Tested

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state is testing 80 to 120 women statewide for signs of the toxic chemical PBB in their breast milk, state Health Director Maurice Reizen says.

Reizen, at a Thursday taping of "Off The Record" on WKAR-TV, said 40 to 60 women are being tested in each peninsula in a study that will take four to six weeks.

Last week, Reizen announced that a preliminary study indicates that a majority of new mothers may have PBB, or polybrominated biphenyl, in their breast milk.

Reizen said that first study was not a scientifically definitive one, and reiterated that he is not ready to tell nursing mothers to stop breast feeding their children.

Asked whether mothers who are worried should have their breast milk tested, Reizen said he doesn't think the state has enough sophisticated testing equipment to handle that demand.

Federal guidelines allow produce containing 300 parts of PBB per billion to be sold for human consumption. Reizen said the highest level of PBB found in breast milk in the first test was 500 parts per billion, while the average for the group with the highest amounts was 90 parts per billion.

The fire retardant chemical was accidentally mixed with livestock feed in October 1973. The contamination did not become public knowledge until the following year.

Reizen said for women who had a casual exposure — who visited or stopped in Michigan — "the odds are overwhelming that there's no danger."

For other women who lived in the state in 1973 and 1974, but who ate store-bought food rather than food from cattle they raised and processed, the "odds are good," he said.

Reizen said the group of highest concern is women who lived on farms where the cattle and chickens they raised ate tainted feed, and where the families ate their own cattle and produce.

"If a mother at this stage really is uncomfortable and has serious reservations about nursing and she goes ahead and places the child on formula milk, that's perfectly all right," he said.

Reizen also said the state hopes to vaccinate five million to six million people against swine flu starting at the end of September or beginning of October. The program will take about six weeks, he said. He said officials still don't know whether people under age 18 will receive the vaccine, which has not been tested for that age group.

He also said that "all the pieces are in place for potential trouble" from St. Louis encephalitis. He said there's evidence of the disease in Canada, and that Michigan has the virus, the mosquitos and the diseased birds to transmit the sickness.

Reizen said if the federal government decides Michigan is the best place to build a nuclear waste dump, he could probably accept it as long as the state has some input into the decision. The Alpena area is under consideration as a site for such a dump.

Curfew Cuts Detroit Crime

DETROIT (AP) — Juvenile crimes, particularly auto thefts and break-ins, appear to have dropped significantly since Detroit began to enforce a new 10 p.m. curfew eight days ago, police officials said.

The curfew requires youngsters under 18 years old to be off city streets by 10 p.m. Comparing the Saturday through Monday periods directly before and after the curfew began on Aug. 19, police said they had received 25 per cent fewer reports of break-ins.

Reported auto thefts were down by nearly 40 per cent, police said. Police records for Aug. 14-18 show 438 reported break-ins of homes, businesses and other places. Department figures for Aug. 21-25, after the curfew, show 328 reported break-ins.

From last Saturday through Monday 177 autos were reported stolen compared with 236 stolen autos reported over the same days in the previous week.

But police said major crimes — rape, assault, murder and robbery — do not appear to be significantly different 'before and after the curfew.

Officers said the figures represent only incidents that have not yet been verified.

But Police Chief Philip Tannian was encouraged by the curfew's apparent results.

"We now see a peace on the streets that we have not seen in a long time. You can ride around town after 10 p.m. at night and see very few under age people violating the curfew," Tannian told a Board of Police Commissioners meeting Thursday.

LMC Radiology Unit Has New Coordinator

John Thommen, a University of Michigan graduate with six years of X-ray experience in Michigan hospitals, has joined the Lake Michigan college faculty to coordinate LMC's radiologic technology program.

JOHN THOMMEN

SMC Tax Rate Stays The Same

DOWAGIAC — The Southwestern Michigan college board has set the property tax rate for the 1976-77 school year at 1.5 mills, the same amount levied every year since 1964.

Dr. Fred Mathews, chairman of the SMC board, said that although state law allows the board to levy additional taxes, the board has been able to hold the tax levy at the 1964 level. The tax is levied against property in the college district.

He said the record was made possible by years of "careful scrutiny of expenditures." The 1.5-mill rate was approved by voters in 1964.

The millage rate for this year was set during a board meeting Tuesday and announced yesterday.

Another reason for the unchanged tax rate is the school's "aggressive pursuit of federal and state funds," Dr. Mathews said.

He said the school still has $787,484 left in the original building and site fund which was started in 1964 with a $1.5 million bond issue. Since then, there has been about $5 million in construction at the campus.

Thommen, a registered radiologic technologist, has been named by the college as coordinator-instructor and will work under the supervision of Dr. Dorothy Leader, LMC associate dean for health sciences. He is a member of the Michigan and the American Societies of Radiologic Technologists and the American Registry of Radiologic Technologists.

Lake Michigan college is seeking accreditation from the American College of Radiologists for its radiologic technology program.

Thommen graduated from Ferris State college with an associate degree in radiologic technology and later graduated from the U of M with a bachelor's degree in science. He has served in the X-ray departments of Beyer Memorial hospital, Ypsilanti; St. Joseph Mercy hospital, Ann Arbor; and Pontiac General and Pontiac State hospitals, at Pontiac.

One of Thommen's first tasks will be fully developing an X-ray laboratory on the Napier avenue campus, some equipment for which recently was given to the college by Memorial hospital; St. Joseph. The lab, now under construction, will include an X-ray table and overhead tube which will be non-functional and used for demonstration and practice purposes. The lab also will include a functional, non-patient X-ray unit with built-in radiation shields for purposes of experimentation and demonstration of the principles of X-ray radiation.

Tax Bill Worries Budget Writers

WASHINGTON (AP) — House budget makers see tax revision legislation as a threat to the success of the first mandatory congressional limits on spending.

On Thursday, the House Budget Committee approved a resolution setting a ceiling of $413.2 billion in appropriations for the year beginning Oct. 1, while projecting revenues at $382.5 billion for a resulting deficit of $30.7 billion.

Sanborn To Manage Symphony

Lloyd F. Sanborn has been appointed to the newly created position of general manager of the Twin Cities Symphony, according to Mrs. Jerome (Suzanne) Warren, president of the board of directors of the Twin Cities Symphony Society.

No salary has yet been determined for the position, Mrs. Warren said.

Sanborn has been associated with the Manpower Development Program of the Twin Cities Area Chamber of Commerce since 1974. He previously served nine years as executive director of the Benton Harbor-St. Joseph YMCA.

An area resident for 12 years, Sanborn has been associated with the Berrien County Council of Churches, Twin Cities Clergy association and the Twin Cities Rotary club.

He received his bachelor's degree from Springfield college, Springfield, Mass., and his master's degree from Boston university and majored in public administration at Washington university. He and his wife, Lois, reside in Benton Harbor.

Mrs. Warren said of Sanborn's responsibilities, "as general manager of the symphony, he will assist the board of directors in the preparation and evaluation of budgets, long-range planning, fund raising activities and grant applications, as well as assisting and directing the various individual board committee activities."

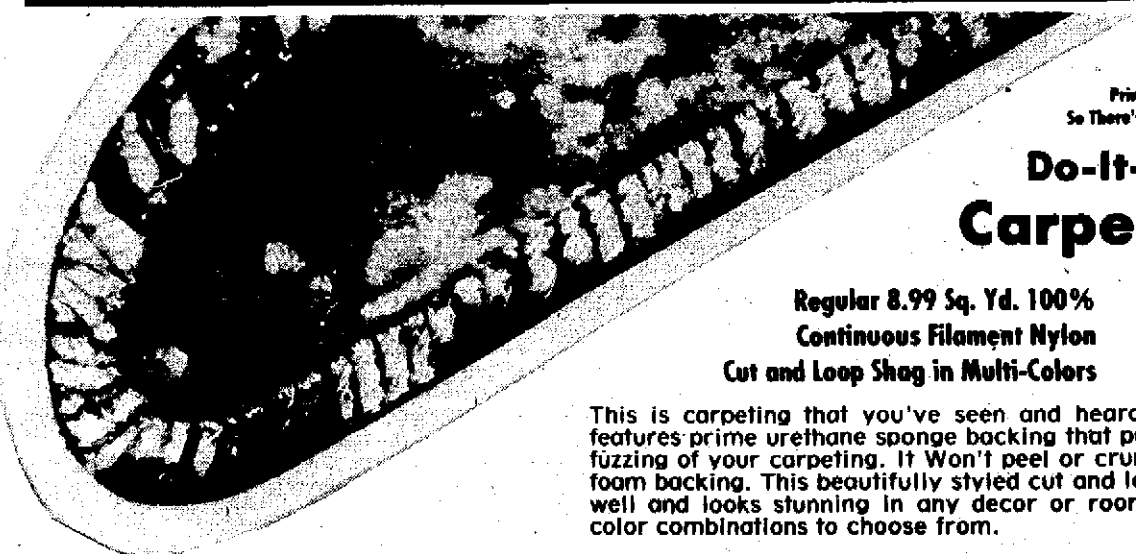

"In addition, he will direct all the activities of the symphony office, including the preparation of all printed material, coordination of concert schedules and management of orchestra finances, including salaries."

Robert Vodnoy, music director and conductor of the symphony, said, "The symphony has experienced tremendous growth over the last few years, and is realizing an ever-increasing popularity among the residents of our community. We have reached the stage where our 'working board' feels it can no longer devote the extensive time involved in the daily process of managing such a complex organization. It is a credit to the board's dedication and supervision over the past years that we now must progress to a more formal system of professional management."

Vodnoy also said Sanborn will assume the responsibilities of coordinating rehearsals and concerts and handling all related activities.

LMC Radiology Unit Has New Coordinator

John Thommen, a University of Michigan graduate with six years of X-ray experience in Michigan hospitals, has joined the Lake Michigan college faculty to coordinate LMC's radiologic technology program.

JOHN THOMMEN

SMC Tax Rate Stays The Same

DOWAGIAC — The Southwestern Michigan college board has set the property tax rate for the 1976-77 school year at 1.5 mills, the same amount levied every year since 1964.

Dr. Fred Mathews, chairman of the SMC board, said that although state law allows the board to levy additional taxes, the board has been able to hold the tax levy at the 1964 level. The tax is levied against property in the college district.

He said the record was made possible by years of "careful scrutiny of expenditures." The 4.5-mill rate was approved by voters in 1964.

The millage rate for this year was set during a board meeting Tuesday and announced yesterday.

Another reason for the unchanged tax rate is the school's "aggressive pursuit of federal and state funds," Dr. Mathews said.

He said the school still has $787,484 left in the original building and site fund which was started in 1964 with a $1.5 million bond issue. Since then, there has been about $5 million in construction at the campus.

Thommen, a registered radiologic technologist, has been named by the college as coordinator-instructor and will work under the supervision of Dr. Dorothy Leader, LMC associate dean for health sciences. He is a member of the Michigan and the American Societies of Radiologic Technologists and the American Registry of Radiologic Technologists.

Lake Michigan college is seeking accreditation from the American College of Radiologists for its radiologic technology program.

Thommen graduated from Ferris State college with an associate degree in radiologic technology and later graduated from the U of M with a bachelor's degree in science. He has served in the X-ray departments of Beyer Memorial hospital, Ypsilanti; St. Joseph Mercy hospital, Ann Arbor; and Pontiac General and Pontiac State hospitals, at Pontiac.

One of Thommen's first tasks will be fully developing an X-ray laboratory on the Napier avenue campus, some equipment for which recently was given to the college by Memorial hospital, St. Joseph. The lab, now under construction, will include an X-ray table and overhead tube which will be non-functional and used for demonstration and practice purposes. The lab also will include a functional, non-patient X-ray unit with built-in radiation shields for purposes of experimentation and demonstration of the principles of X-ray radiation.

Tax Bill Worries Budget Writers

WASHINGTON (AP) — House budget makers see tax revision legislation as a threat to the success of the first mandatory congressional limits on spending.

On Thursday, the House Budget Committee approved a resolution setting a ceiling of $413.2 billion in appropriations for the year beginning Oct. 1, while projecting revenues at $362.5 billion for a resulting deficit of $50.7 billion.

Sanborn To Manage Symphony

Lloyd F. Sanborn has been appointed to the newly created position of general manager of the Twin Cities Symphony, according to Mrs. Jerome (Suzanne) Warren, president of the board of directors of the Twin Cities Symphonic Society.

No salary has yet been determined for the position, Mrs. Warren said.

Sanborn has been associated with the Manpower Development Program of the Twin Cities Area Chamber of Commerce since 1974. He previously served nine years as executive director of the Benton Harbor-St. Joseph YMCA.

An area resident for 12 years, Sanborn has been associated with the Berrien County Council of Churches, Twin Cities Clergy Association and the Twin Cities Rotary club.

He received his bachelor's degree from Springfield college, Springfield, Mass., and his master's degree from Boston university and majored in public administration at Washington university. He and his wife, Lois, reside in Benton Harbor.

Mrs. Warren said of Sanborn's responsibilities, "as general manager of the symphony, he will assist the board of directors in the preparation and evaluation of budgets, long-range planning, fund raising activities and grant applications, as well as assisting and directing the various individual board committee activities."

"In addition, he will direct all the activities of the symphony office, including the preparation of all printed material, coordination of concert schedules and management of orchestra finances, including salaries."

Robert Vodnoy, music director and conductor of the symphony, said, "The symphony has experienced tremendous growth over the last few years, and is realizing an ever-increasing popularity among the residents of our community. We have reached the stage where our 'working board' feels it can no longer devote the extensive time involved in the daily process of managing such a complex organization. It is a credit to the board's dedication and supervision over the past years that we now must progress to a more formal system of professional management."

Legion Disease Spectre Hanging Over Seattle

SEATTLE (AP) — They poked into air conditioners and tested the water, even the ice cubes. Emergency analysis labs were set up for 24-hour-a-day availability and an "early warning detection system" was instituted by local hospitals.

Because of the spectre of "legionnaires' disease," city health officials and police worked round-the-clock this week while 25,000 persons attended the American Legion national convention in Seattle.

VICTIM: Sister Mildred Trzil, 71, above, died this week in Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Pennsylvania health officials list her death as being from "Legionnaires Disease." Sister Trzil attended the Eucharistic Congress in Philadelphia, Pa. (AP Wirephoto)

Since the baffling disease broke out after a state Legion convention in Philadelphia last month, 28 persons have died and more than 150 others have been hospitalized with pneumonia-like symptoms.

All of the victims had links to the Philadelphia convention or to the hotel which served as convention headquarters.

Crews of sanitation engineers, plumbing and water inspectors, physicians and epidemiologists were on hand for the Seattle meeting.

And because of the possibility, however slim, that sabotage was involved in the Philadelphia deaths, Secret Service officials said "extra precautions" were taken for convention appearances by Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter and Republican vice presidential nominee Sen. Bob Dole.

Agent Elmer W. Moore declined to specify what special steps were taken, and local police said only that "health officers and food and drug people" were involved.

There were no serious illnesses during the convention here, which ended Thursday. But many of the 300 Pennsylvania delegates, including some victims of "legionnaires' disease," said there were a few awkward moments for them in elevators or restaurants.

Pennsylvania adjutant Edward R. Hoak said he "sensed some apprehension early on in the convention (from fellow delegates), but not since."

Howard Burkhardt, a legionnaire from Gallitzin, Pa., who spent five days in the hospital with the mysterious illness, said, "There was a lot of kidding, like, 'don't come near me,' jokes, but then they (other delegates) would shake your hand."

Mario Muloberti of Jeannette, Pa., said that despite the nine days he spent hospitalized with the disease, he was not afraid of coming to Seattle. "I didn't think anything would happen," he said.

City Hall officials said there was "quite a bit of concern" that Seattle's $350 million-a-year convention business could be crippled if anything happened here this week.

"Certainly because of the unanswered questions in the Philadelphia episode, there was increased surveillance," said Dr. Richard Wade, chief of environmental health services for the Seattle-King County Health Department.

"It's not unusual when we're dealing with large conferences" to increase health and sanitation checks at hotels and restaurants, he added, "but not to the same degree of 24-hour surveillance and toxicological examinations as we did for this conference."

Boat Sinks; Save Seven

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. (AP) — Seven people from two Wisconsin families were rescued from northern Lake Michigan Thursday after a 40-foot houseboat sank, Coast Guard officials said.

The Coast Guard said the houseboat pilot radioed that he was taking on water, and abandoning ship. A Coast Guard helicopter spotted the sinking vessel about an hour after the mayday report was received.

The seven people were clinging to the sinking craft about 25 miles southwest of Manistique.

All seven were flown to a hospital in Escanaba where they were treated and released.

The boat's owner, Jim Pyeatt of Menominee Falls, Wis., said the craft began taking on water over the bow. The lake was just too rough for a houseboat-style vessel to handle, he said.

Senate To Vote On Aid For Higher Education

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is nearing final action on a $35.3-billion bill to extend federal programs for higher and vocational education, after rejecting attempts to restrict court-ordered busing to desegregate schools.

A vote is scheduled for today on final passage of the legislation that would extend the programs for six years.

Among other things, the bill would increase the maximum federal grant for poor students to attend college from $1,400 to $1,600 per year. It also would extend eligibility for government-guaranteed student loans to families with annual incomes of $25,000. The current limit is $15,000.

Appropriations Committee, said the bill's $1,800 maximum basic student grant authorization is misleading, since Congress has never been able to appropriate enough money for the $1,400 maximum authorized since 1972.

The current average grant, Stevens said, is $680 a year, and he expressed doubt that the proposed increase to $1,800 will raise the average to more than $700 a year.

The rejected busing amendment was designed to keep courts from ordering busing for racial purposes beyond the next closest school.

"In other action on the bill, the Senate adopted 88 to 0 an amendment to exempt father-son and mother-daughter events in public schools from the ban on sex discrimination in federally supported educational institutions.

The amendment, by Rep. Paul Fannin, R-Ariz., also would waive application of the antidiscrimination law to Boys State and Girls State programs sponsored by the American Legion and its auxiliary.

The House has passed separate bills extending higher education programs for one year and vocational education assistance for six years. The final version will go to a House-Senate conference.

Although the Ford administration has indicated opposition to the Senate version of the bill, Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., Republican floor manager, told the Senate that "we believe and hope that the President will approve the final version."

War Over, Says Zulu Leader

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — "The war is over," said a Zulu leader after three days of battle in the Soweto township in which at least 31 blacks were killed.

The Zulu leader said late Thursday night that the men of his tribe would go back to work today.

Deputy Police Commissioner D.J. Kriel said police gunfire had killed 10 blacks in Soweto since the start of a mass work boycott last Monday, and 21 more were killed in fighting between Zulu migratory workers living in barrack-like hostels and permanent black residents of the sprawling ghetto south of Johannesburg.

The war in Soweto began Monday evening when militant supporters of the work boycott set upon a group of Zulus who had been to work in Johannesburg in defiance of the strike called to protest the white government's racial policies.

The Zulus reportedly killed seven of the other blacks, and the next day a crowd burned a Zulu hostel. A mob of about 1,500 Zulus ran wild through the big black township south of Johannesburg, burning, raping and killing. Retaliatory attacks followed quickly, and the warfare spread across much of Soweto's 26 square miles.

The war cry of "Ushuthu!" — "A united Zulu nation!" — rang through the streets as terrified women ran to police stations screaming, "The Zulus are coming! The Zulus are coming!"

Rites Saturday For Doris Hynd

Funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday in Dey-Florin funeral home, St. Joseph, for Mrs. Robert (Doris) Hynd, 63, who died Wednesday in Mercy hospital. Mrs. Hynd was prominent in Twin City area educational and club circles. She lived with her husband, Robert V., a retired Lake Michigan college teacher, at 1461 Broadway, Benton Harbor.

MRS. DORIS HYND

Mrs. Hynd was president of the Benton Harbor-St. Joseph branch of American Association of University women, 1958-60, was art chairman for the AAUW state board in 1959, and was a member of the AAUW state board. The local branch honored her with a national fellowship grant in her name.

She also was a member of PEO, an honorary society of educators.

Mrs. Hynd received degrees from Coe college, Ames, Iowa, and attended the graduate school of University of Southern California. She studied Oriental philosophy both at Southern California and in China before World War II and was considered an authority on China. She taught history of Japan, China and Russia at the Twin City YWCA in the 1960s.

She was born July 17, 1913, in Fairfield, Iowa. She married Robert Hynd Aug. 25, 1947, in St. Louis, Mo., and they moved to Benton Harbor the same year.

Surviving besides her husband are a daughter, Mrs. William (Jennifer) Barrett of Columbia; a son, Robert F., a student at Wayne State University Medical school; and a brother, Maurice Fryer, Sun City, Ariz.

Friends may call at the funeral home after 2 p.m. today. Burial will be in Riverview cemetery.

Memorials may be made to the American Cancer Society.

Mrs. Dole's Job Being Weighed

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

President Ford holds another in his series of campaign strategy sessions today, and one campaign official said the first item on the agenda in Ford's talks with vice presidential running mate Bob Dole will be the role of Dole's wife in the campaign.

Elizabeth Dole is a member of the Federal Trade Commission. Although she could retain the post during the campaign, Ford's advisers have decided that legally she could not combine her duties with a full round of campaign appearances for her husband and the President.

Ford and Dole plan to confer on whether she should resign. The Dokes joined the vacationing Ford in Vail, Colo., Thursday night.

In Plains, Ga., Democratic candidate Jimmy Carter told reporters he was not surprised by polls that show a sharp drop in his lead over Ford.

"I've never expected an easy time," said Carter, who said his lead was still "substantial."

The latest Gallup Poll, released Thursday and based on interviews with 1,016 registered voters last weekend, concluded that 46 per cent of the electorate supported Carter and 39 per cent supported Ford. Prior to the GOP convention last week, Ford trailed Carter 56 to 33.

An increase of several percentage points is expected in the next poll, Carter's aides said.

An Opinion Research Corp. poll released this week showed that 46 per cent of the electorate supported Carter, while 37 per cent supports Ford.

Meanwhile, representatives from the Carter and Ford camps Thursday concluded their initial round of talks in Washington on a date and format for the proposed debates between the candidates.

While Ford has suggested the first debate be held shortly after Labor Day, Carter favors the League of Women Voters' recommendation for a Sept. 28 start.

There were indications that a compromise would be reached for a mid-September date. The Ford-Carter emissaries reported making substantial progress in their first three-hour meeting and planned to confer again Wednesday.

The Federal Election Commission has still not ruled on whether the league could accept donations from unions and corporations to finance the debates. It said it would decide the question Monday.

Dole flew to Colorado after an appearance at the Iowa State Fair in Des Moines in which he charged that Carter's promise to end embargoes on foreign grain sales "once and for all" was unrealistic and out of step with the Democratic platform.

Dole also accused Carter of taking inconsistent stands on the issue.

Carter, during his own appearance at the fair Wednesday, said, "Under my administration, if I'm elected, there will never be another embargo that singles out farm products."

But in a subsequent interview with the Des Moines Register, he said about embargoes: "It would have to be an extreme realistic."

case. If we don't have adequate grain stocks to meet our basic needs, this would have to be mandatory."

Dole said that in a national emergency the president must have the right "to impose embargo or restraint ... on any commodity, not just grain. Anyone who stands up and says categorically there will be no grain embargo isn't being realistic."

Can't Go To Court

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — An employee cannot file suit in circuit court over injuries suffered at work if the accident is within the jurisdiction of the worker's compensation act, the state Supreme Court has ruled. The court said Thursday the case must go through the worker's compensation system for benefits, and not attempt to win damages in court. The Supreme Court, reversing the Court of Appeals, reinstated a decision in Wayne County Circuit Court which dismissed a suit against General Motors Corp. over the death of an employee. It said the case concerned matters for the Worker's Compensation Bureau, not the circuit court. It said the appeals court was "clearly erroneous" when it ruled the circuit court had simultaneous jurisdiction with the Worker's Compensation Bureau.

Record Traffic Seen

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Traffic on Michigan roads over the four-day Labor Day weekend is expected to set a record this year if the weather is nice, state officials said Thursday. The state Department of Highways and Transportation predicted a 2.6 per cent increase over the 643 million miles driven during the 1975 weekend. All road and bridge construction on state highways will be suspended between 3 p.m. Friday and Tuesday morning, the state said.

Would Cut Seafarer Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Philip Ruppe, R-Mich., recommended Thursday that funds be deleted from the Defense Department budget for full-scale development of Project Seafarer. There is $4.6 million in the Senate's Defense appropriations bill which is earmarked for construction of a test facility of a Seafarer system at a site the Navy says it wants to build in Michigan's Upper Peninsula. The House bill has no comparable funding provision. A conference committee is now meeting to resolve this and other differences between the defense appropriations bills. Ruppe told a news conference what is at stake is not construction of a test facility but whether Congress will reverse its 15-year history and authorize fullscale development of the Project Seafarer system.

May Eye Ballot Law

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Democrats may approve a minority platform plank urging repeal of a new state law that makes it tougher for minor parties to get on the ballot, says state party chairman Morley Winograd. Winograd said Thursday a minority report urging the legislature to repeal the new law "has a lot of support" and may get adopted at the state Democratic convention in Detroit this weekend. The new law, commonly called the McCollough bill after its sponsor, Sen. Patrick McCollough, requires minor parties to get three-tenths of one per cent of the total August primary vote to qualify for a spot on the November general election ballot. That is in addition to collecting 17,674 signatures of registered Michigan voters.

Lottery Winners

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. (AP) — A Kalamazoo appliance salesman, Norman Emmerich, 56, and his wife Doreen, won the $200,000 top prize Thursday in the Michigan Lottery's weekly super play drawing. It was the Emmerichs' third appearance on the show. They won the $5,000 comeback prize two weeks in a row for total of $20,000 in winnings. The couple said they would use part of the money to send their 18-year-old son to college. Gerald Hirsch, 40, a Westland carpet salesman, won the $25,000 second prize. Eleanor Hicks, 47, an account clerk at a Detroit brokerage firm won $15,000; Stella McCoy, 55, an employee of the National Bank of Lansing, won $12,500; and Ella Green, a 61-year-old Detroit housewife won $10,000. The eight-member El Toro Lottery Club of Midland won the $5,000 comeback prize.

Difference Of One Mile

SENEY, Mich. (AP) — A wilderness fire raging through Michigan's Upper Peninsula might never have flared out of control if it had started just a mile south of its origin, a U.S. Fish and Wildlife official says. Jack Frye, manager of the Wildlife Service's Seney Refuge, where the fire is centered, said Thursday that federal regulations prevented him from ordering crews into the wilderness area where the fire broke out nearly a month ago. The fire was touched off by lightning in a "dedicated wilderness" area. Fires in areas so designated, Frye said, are allowed to burn "unless they endanger life, property or the wilderness habitat." The fire, burning out of control, already has consumed nearly 19,000 acres of federal and state lands.

Howe Is Told Not To Run

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Utah's Democratic leadership has voted to ask Rep. Alton T. Howe, convicted on appeal this week of soliciting sex acts for pay, to drop his bid for re-election.

The party's state executive committee voted Thursday to ask Howe to drop out, following a closed-door meeting which the freshman congressman attended.

Howe described the meeting with the six-member executive committee as "a very cordial exchange." He said the committee did not ask him face-to-face to withdraw. Democratic State Chairman Justin Stewart said later that the committee would let Howe hear about its decision "in the media."

Howe said he told the executive committee only that he would be reassessing the political implications of his conviction. He had said earlier he would announce his decision on staying in the race by Sept. 3.

Stewart said the committee also voted to call a meeting of the 265-member Democratic state central committee on Sept. 18 if Howe declines to withdraw. Stewart said the full committee would then "take whatever action is appropriate for this matter."

Howe was given a suspended 30-day jail sentence Wednesday and ordered to pay court costs of his district court trial on a charge he solicited sex from two police decoy prostitutes.

He had been convicted earlier on the same charges in city court, and had appealed to the district court.

veteran, established rapport and drew up a list of written promises which committed Gossie to a review of its practices towards veterans.

From a small, barricaded office in the Terminal Tower, Leach asked a secretary to call the news media and explain his demands, which included a request that he wanted to see a story about himself on network television.

When, at about 6:45 p.m., Leach saw a story about himself on one of the network television broadcasts, he told the hostages, "Everybody gets out."

He threw down his guns, raised his hands and walked out.

Some people jeered and others cheered. "They made me do it, they made me do it," Leach shouted during a short scuffle as police led him to a car.

When Leach, wearing a tee shirt and blue jeans, arrived at the police station, he was met by his wife, Linda. They kissed and hugged, and Mrs. Leach said she was never happier in her life. She said she would have joined her husband had she known what he was going to do.

A Funny Thing Happened...

Will The Real...?

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Diane Marie Stumpf arrived on the Indiana University campus and reported to the dormitory room she had been assigned to share with another student — Diane Marie Stumpf. A computer error had assigned two freshmen with the same name to the same room at Wright Quadrangle. Despite the inevitable confusion in telephone calls and mail, Diane Marie Stumpf of Indianapolis and Diane Marie Stumpf of Pittsburgh say they like the arrangement. "I love it," laughed Diane from Indianapolis. "When I was told, I just burst out laughing." And Diane from Pittsburgh just "couldn't stop thinking about it. I went all through high school writing my name and not thinking about it except that it belonged to me. I was kind of shocked to find out that someone else had it, too." Now the nameplate on the door of Room 106 at Wright Quad reads: "The two Diane Marie Stumpfs."

Right Equipment, Wrong Car

GILLETTE, Wyo. (AP) — Two would-be car thieves equipped with a tow truck didn't fool around when they tried to steal a car belonging to the local sheriff's department at a bar south of here. Officials said the two drove up in the truck and pulled the sheriff's department car away while two deputies were inside the bar making a routine check. Campbell County authorities said officers in another patrol car who had been sent to the bar saw the incident, waited until the truck pulled away, and then arrested Sammy Dee Pierce, 36, and Richard Lee Ward, 31, both of Gillette. The two are being held on $2,500 bond after being charged with auto theft before Justice of the Peace Biff Hawkey. Officials said the tow truck belonged to an auto parts store where both defendants worked.

Doing It By The Book

ROYAL CITY, Wash. (AP) — Mike Brown has a home where the buffalo roam. About four years ago, Brown began raising the shaggy, brown beasts. He used a paperback book to tell him everything he needed to know about raising the animals. He says he got interested in raising buffalo because he thought it would be funny. With a herd of 30 males averaging close to 2,000 pounds and the meat selling for $2.50 per pound, Brown may laugh all the way to the bank. "I don't know what it tastes like, but there's sure a big demand for it," he said. "Seattle would take everything I had if I'd sell it." Brown is still building his herd and hasn't sold any animals. He said he may make his first sales next year.

Mrs. Dole's Job Being Weighed

By ASSOCIATED PRESS
President Ford holds another in his series of campaign strategy sessions today, and one campaign official said the first item on the agenda in Ford's talks with vice presidential running mate Bob Dole will be the role of Dole's wife in the campaign.

Elizabeth Dole is a member of the Federal Trade Commission. Although she could retain the post during the campaign, Ford's advisers have decided that legally she could not combine her duties with a full round of campaign appearances for her husband and the President.

Ford and Dole plan to confer on whether she should resign. The Doles joined the vacationing Ford in Vail, Colo., Thursday night.

In Plains, Ga., Democratic candidate Jimmy Carter told reporters he was not surprised by polls that show a sharp drop in his lead over Ford.

The latest Gallup Poll, released Thursday and based on interviews with 1,016 registered voters last weekend, concluded that 49 per cent of the electorate supported Carter and 39 per cent supported Ford. Prior to the GOP convention last week, Ford trailed Carter 56 to 33.

An increase of several percentage points is expected in the next poll, Carter's aides said.

An Opinion Research Corp. poll released this week showed that 46 per cent of the electorate supported Carter, while 37 per cent supports Ford.

Meanwhile, representatives from the Carter and Ford camps Thursday concluded their initial round of talks in Washington on a date and format for the proposed debates between the candidates.

While Ford has suggested the first debate be held shortly after Labor Day, Carter favors the League of Women Voters' recommendation for a Sept. 28 start.

There were indications that a compromise would be reached for a mid-September date. The Ford-Carter emissaries reported making substantial progress in their first three-hour meeting and planned to confer again Wednesday.

The Federal Election Commission has still not ruled on whether the league could accept donations from unions and corporations to finance the debates. It said it would decide the question Monday.

Dole flew to Colorado after an appearance at the Iowa State Fair in Des Moines in which he charged that Carter's promise to end embargoes on foreign grain sales "once and for all" was unrealistic and out of step with the Democratic platform.

Dole also accused Carter of taking inconsistent stands on the issue.

Carter, during his own appearance at the fair Wednesday, said, "Under my administration, if I'm elected, there will never be another embargo that singles out farm products."

But in a subsequent interview with the Des Moines Register, he said about embargoes: "It would have to be an extreme case. If we don't have adequate grain stocks to meet our basic needs, this would have to be mandatory."

Dole said that in a national emergency the president must have the right "to impose embargo or restraint ... on any commodity, not just grain. Anyone who stands up and says categorically there will be no grain embargo isn't being realistic."

Airplane Crashes; 2 Unhurt

BERRIEN SPRINGS — A Berrien Springs pilot and his Sodus passenger escaped injury last night when the pilot was forced to crash land a light airplane at the airport west of here. Pilot Wendell Cole, 45, said he labored some three hours in the air to repair a faulty nose gear before belly landing the single-engine aircraft on a grass strip at the Andrews university airport in Oronoko township.

Both Cole, of 229 Ridge street, Berrien Springs, and passenger Bill Church, 33, 3849 Hartman road, Sodus, walked away from the Beechcraft Bonanza without a scratch.

Berrien Springs firemen and an ambulance stood by as Cole brought the plane down about 8:30 p.m. No fuel was spilled and damage to the plane was light, Cole said.

George John, Berrien Springs village-Oronoko township police patrolman, said the plane skidded to a halt some 220 feet after first touching down on the grass near the paved runway. "It was a good piece of flying," John said.

Police identified the owner of the plane as Ross Hadley, 3001 Lake Shore drive, St. Joseph.

Cole said he and Church took off from the airport about 4:15 p.m. to check out a new compass for the plane. When he first attempted to land, the nose wheel would not drop, Cole said.

Later the wheel would drop, but would not lock, Cole added. Cole said that Church, also a pilot, handled the plane's controls while he attempted to repair the faulty nose gear. Armed with a screw driver, he said he moved a seat and part of the plane's floorboard to get to the gear.

A veteran pilot with over 5,800 hours of flying time, Cole said the decision was made to belly land the plane not because the aircraft was running low on fuel, but because "we wanted to get it over before dark."

Cole said the aircraft was belly landed despite the fact that the two rear wheels of the aircraft were working properly and locked into position. If it had been landed on the two wheels alone, the nose-heavy plane may have tipped over during the landing, he added.

A flight instructor and former high school teacher, Cole worked in the Andrews aviation training program from 1967-1971. He said he was in charge of the program from 1969-1971.

Unruffled after the landing, Cole said he soon plans to commute from his Berrien Springs home to a job in Chicago that he had held for 10 years earlier in his life. That job will also require the lofty calm of a pilot.

He plans to wash windows in high-rise buildings.

Reporter Joins Staff Of Riegler

PROMOTED: Carolyn Nelson, 1016 Michigan avenue, South Haven, has been promoted to operator service manager, General Telephone company has announced. Mrs. Nelson will supervise and train all operators in South Haven area. She and her husband Nick have one daughter. She replaces Pamela Leppke who is transferring to Three Rivers.

TROY, Mich. (AP) — Dennis Herrick, political reporter for the Flint Journal, has been named campaign press aide to Democratic Senate candidate Congressman Don Riegler.

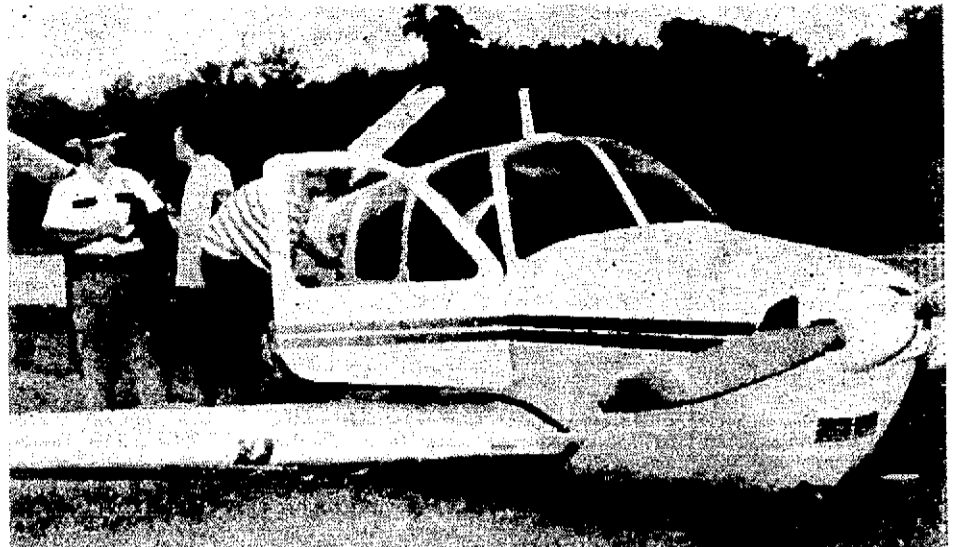

Herrick, 33, replaces David Taylor, who quit the campaign a few weeks before the Aug. 3 primary election because of philosophical differences with Riegler and other campaign aides. The disagreements included how results of Riegler's polls should be used.

Herrick, who began work with the campaign this week, has covered Riegler as his hometown paper's political reporter since 1970. He has worked for the paper since 1965.

Cass Board Rehires Firm To Equip Medical Center

CASSOPOLIS — The Cass county board of commissioners last night approved rehiring Design House Inc., Farmington Hills, to equip and furnish the county's new medical care facility at a cost of $72,250.

Back in June the board had originally hired the firm at a cost not to exceed $85,000, but on advice of legal counsel advertised the contract for competitive bidding. Design House Inc. was the lowest of four bids submitted. The high bid was $90,000.

The board also heard a report by William Darooge, representing the accounting firm of Vetere Co., Grand Rapids, concerning fiscal operations of the present medical care facility. The firm was hired back in March to conduct the study.

Damage reported the medical care facility's administrative personnel could be cut from six to four; that department heads carry out supply functions instead of maintaining a central supply clerk; laundry department should operate with two people instead of from one to four and laundry should be weighed instead of counted by hand. He also said maintenance at the new facility would increase instead of decrease.

In other areas, the board approved spending $64,000 to refinish the upper floor of the new courthouse annex and lease part of it back to the county social services department at a cost of $4,225 a month if the department agrees. The department is located on the bottom floor of the courthouse annex. The state would pay the rent.

The board also approved making application to the state department of labor for 100 per cent funding for the project and finishing the courthouse parking lot.

The board approved purchasing a 48-car parking lot across Broadway street from Atty. Glenn Squires, Cassopolis, at a cost of $23,000 plus 1975 and 1976 taxes on the property.

Last night's meeting was a continuation of the board's Aug. 10 session.

Aid For Shrinking Schools

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Senate Majority Leader William Fitzgerald is promising financial help for school districts whose enrollment has declined at least two per cent from last year's count. Fitzgerald said that he and Sen. William Faust, D-Westland, plan to reinstate that portion of the school aid bill that would have provided an extra $2.8 million, or about $80 a student, to cover schools' costs in gearing down to a reduced student level. Gov. William Milliken vetoed that portion of the school aid bill for the 1976-77 fiscal year.

Van Buren-Kazoo Unemployment Up

KALAMAZOO — Unemployment for Kalamazoo and Van Buren counties rose from 7.9 to 8 per cent during July, according to figures released for the two-county area by the Michigan Employment Security Commission's office here.

The spokesman said the civilian labor force in the two counties dropped from 123,500 in June to 123,100 in July, but the number unemployed jumped slightly from 9,700 to 9,800. However, a year ago during July there were 11,300 jobless or 9.3 per cent of the two-county labor force.

Kalamazoo-Portage area production workers in manufacturing industries averaged 41.6 hours per week, at $296.76 per week or $6.17 per hour during June. Production workers in Michigan factories averaged 44.9 hours per week, at $300.80 per week, or $6.85 per hour.

Lawrence Tiger Boosters To Meet Wednesday Night

LAWRENCE — A meeting of the Lawrence Tiger Booster club will be Wednesday, Sept. 1, at 7:30 p.m. in the science room of the high school here, according to William Conklin, club president. Purpose of the meeting, according to Conklin, is to discuss whether Lawrence will have a junior high basketball program this year. All parents are invited.

Four Win State Horse Honors

EAST LANSING — Four Van Buren county youngsters won medals at the annual state 4-H Horse show held on the campus of Michigan State university earlier this week.

Over 500 young people from 67 counties competed in the event.

Marcia Gentry, 14, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Gentry, route 1, 64th avenue, Paw Paw, led the area contingent with four medals and a championship ribbon. Competing in the division for registered horses shown primarily under western equipment, Marcia bested competitors from six other counties to win the championship ribbon in the pleasure class.

She also won gold medals in the saddle seat equitation and Western pleasure classes, and bronze medals in the stock seat equitation and English pleasure (saddle seat) classes.

Valerie L. Huston, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Huston, route 1, Bloomington, won a silver medal in the hunt seat pleasure class, and bronze medals in the fitting and showmanship and Western pleasure classes, plus an honorable mention in stock seat equitation.

Nancy Moyle, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Moyle, 7941 South Fifth street, Mattawan, won a silver medal in stock seat equitation and honorable mentions in three other classes. Margaret Witte, 12, took a bronze in the hunt seat pleasure class. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. David Witte, route 3, South Haven.

Any Ething, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Ething, route 2, Bangor, won honorable mention in the fitting and showmanship class. Also competing from the county, but not placing were Shelly Ploof, route 2, CR-374, Paw Paw; Terry Mosher, 8th avenue, Gobles; Steve Wetters, 977 West O avenue, Kalamazoo; and Tim Tryia, route 2, Schoolcraft.

Baroda Woman Files Suit In Traffic Death Of Son

A Baroda woman has filed suit in Berrien Circuit court against the drivers of two cars which were allegedly drag racing when her son was killed while riding his bicycle.

The plaintiff, Wilma Greathouse, of 8774 Ruggies road, claims her son, John David Greathouse, 14, was killed May 2 on Cleveland avenue near Lemon Creek road, Baroda. The suit does not specify the amount of damages sought, but asks for any amount over $10,000 "which is deemed reasonable by a jury."

Named defendants in the suit were Norman Lewis, of Baroda, and Marvin Guess, of Stevensville.

The suit claims Lewis attempted to pass Guess' car, which swerved to avoid being passed, and Lewis' auto left the road and struck the boy, who was riding his bike on the shoulder of the road. Guess has pleaded no contest in Berrien Circuit court to a charge of negligent homicide and is awaiting sentencing, while Lewis has not been charged in connection with the accident, according to the Berrien prosecutor's office.

In another circuit court suit, Jerrold and Phyllis Alberts, of

Named defendants were Magnavox Co., Inc., and Yeske's Appliances, Inc., of Benton township.

The suit charges the Alberts purchased a TV from Yeske's and on May 4, 1975, the TV caught fire and damaged their home. The Alberts seek $50,000 from the defendants, while the insurance company claims it paid $27,250 to the Alberts and now asks that amount be reimbursed to the insurance company by the defendants.

GROUND BREAKING: Michigan National bank has broken ground for construction of $80,000 branch facility in Buchanan township. New structure will replace temporary facility now in use and 33 by 44-foot building will be located on Front street, just west of Buchanan city limits. On hand for symbolic ground breaking ceremonies were, from left, Larry Hacker, branch manager; Donna Newsom and Ruth Rose, Buchanan township clerk and treasurer, respectively; Mrs. Sharron Thompson, owner of property on which branch is to be built, and Joseph Garbert II, Buchanan mayor. Branch will be firm's ninth facility in southwestern Michigan. Construction is expected to be completed in 90 days. (Staff photo)

AUGUST DRAW NETS 402 PINTS

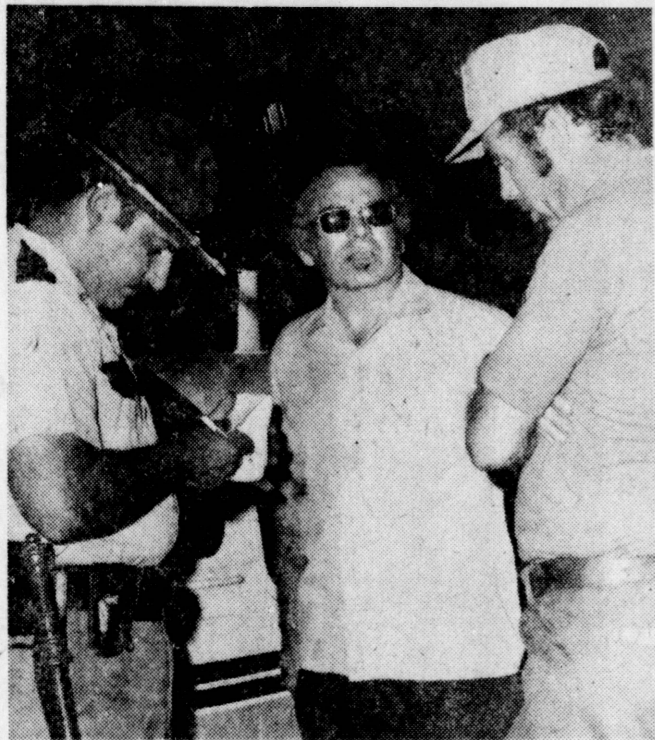

September Blood Drives Set

The Berrien county Red Cross collected 402 pints of blood during blood drives in August and has announced plans to hold two blood collection drives during September, according to Jack Stafford, county blood chairman. Stafford said blood drives will be held Sept. 29 at the St. Joseph Elks Lodge No. 541, 518 Broad street, from noon to 6 p.m., and Sept. 23 at St. John's Evangelical church, Cleveland avenue, Baroda, from 2 to 8 p.m.

Collections for August were 214 pints at a blood drive in Niles, 125 pints in Stevensville, 75 at the Lake Michigan Beach fire department, and 28 at the Second Baptist church in Benton Harbor.

Stafford said Ronald Golubic of St. Joseph joined the chapter's four-gallon blood donor roll during August.

September Blood Drives Set

The Berrien county Red Cross collected 402 pints of blood during blood drives in August and has announced plans to hold two blood collection drives during September, according to Jack Stafford, county blood chairman. Stafford said blood drives will be held Sept. 20 at the St. Joseph Elks Lodge No. 541, 518 Broad street, from noon to 6 p.m., and Sept. 23 at St. John's Evangelical church, Cleveland avenue, Baroda, from 2 to 8 p.m.

Collections for August were 214 pints at a blood drive in Niles, 125 pints in Stevensville, 35 at the Lake Michigan Beach fire department, and 28 at the Second Baptist church in Benton Harbor.

Stafford said Ronald Golubic of St. Joseph joined the chapter's four-gallon blood donor roll during August.

Richard's Bat, Arm Topples Cubs

Phils Freeze Reds

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Three Reds led off base as 50,000 people cheered in the 12th inning. Tony Perez strode to the plate and Philadelphia's Tug McGraw stared in from the mound, pondering which of his numerous theories would get him out of trouble.

McGraw first called on his "problem and solution theory," considering the situation and that only a perfect pitch would produce the proper solution.

"Some would say my problem was Perez," said McGraw, who said the opposite. "But any time you think of the hitter as a problem, uh, oh — the ball comes down in the parking lot. "You've just got to think of the hitter as the answer to your solution."

While all this thinking was going on, Perez was waiting for a pitch. He would wait longer, for McGraw hadn't quite finished his discussion with himself. The "frozen snowball theory" was next up.

"Scientists have predicted that 50 billion years from now, the sun will burn out and the earth will orbit like a frozen snowball," explained McGraw. "When that day comes, who will care if Perez hit a grand slam off me?"

It doesn't much matter, for Perez managed only a frozen snowball to center fielder Garry Maddox. The throw was no longer, and McGraw had proven there is no need to talk to baseballs to win when you have so much company out there on the pitcher's mound.

The next inning, Maddox hit a double to score Jay Johnstone from first base and give the Phillies a 5-4 triumph over the Reds — Philadelphia's seventh conquest of Cincinnati in the last nine encounters. It was the Phillies' ninth triumph in their last 12 and the Reds' eighth loss in the last 12.

"Nothing's going right," said Perez.

"At least we're making them take longer," added Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson.

But none of the Phils seemed much impressed by the fact that Philadelphia has beaten the defending World Champs more times than any other National League team this year.

"It doesn't mean anything until the playoffs," said Johnstone.

Johnny Bench's two-run homer in the eighth inning and Dan Driessen's game-tying in the ninth wiped out a 4-1 Phillies lead built on a two-run shot by Greg Luzinski during a three-run sixth-inning Cedeño's two-run triple and basesempty homers by Jose Cruz and pitcher J.R. Richard led the Houston Astros past the Chicago Cubs 3-3 Thursday.

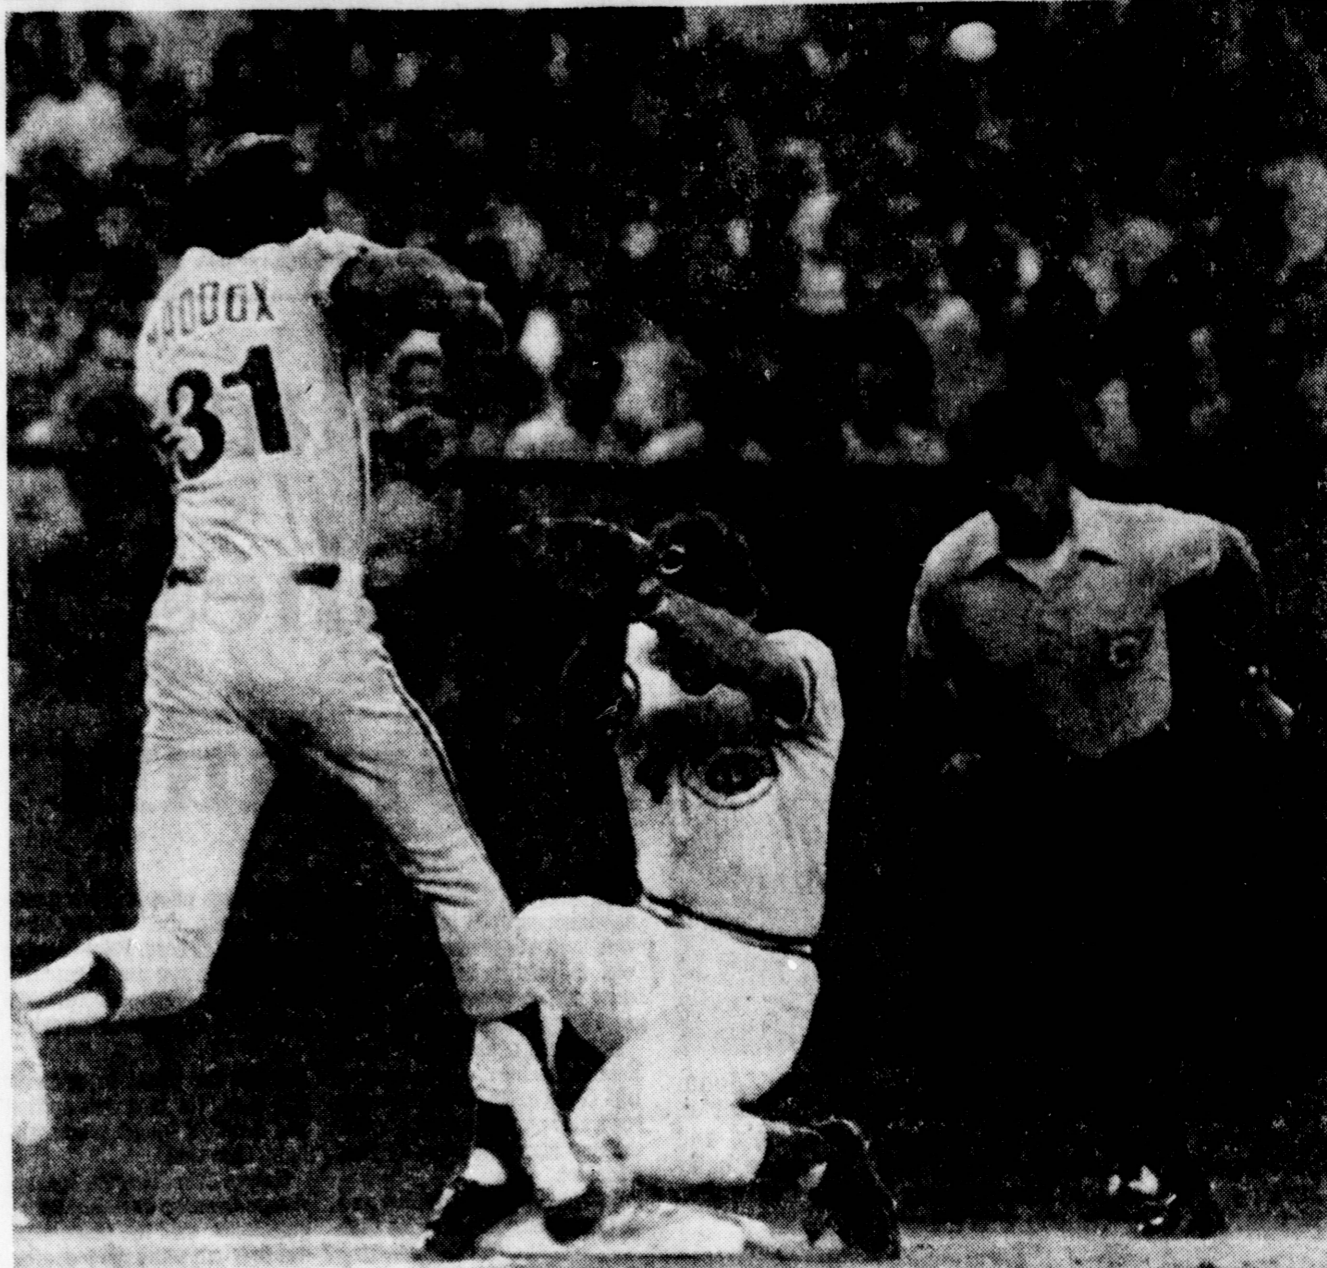

The Astros jumped on Rick Reuschel, 11-9, for three runs in the first inning. Jerry DaVanon and Enos Cabell singled and came home on Cedeño's triple to right-center field, then Cedeño scored on a double by Bob Watson. Richard hit his first homer of the year in the second inning and Cruz hit his third of the season in the eighth.

Richard, 15-13, who pitched 8 1/3 innings, gave up Bill Madlock's 14th homer in the fourth inning and Rick Monday's 23rd in the sixth. Jerry Morales' ninth-inning single off reliever Ken Forsch drove in the Cubs' final run.

Kansas City's Hal McRae tied the game with a two-out, three-run homer in the ninth, then Jim Wohlford's single scored Bob Stinson to win it in the 15th.

Sikes Has Lethal Putter

Revamped Style Leads American Classic

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Amiable Dan Sikes has turned his putter into a lethal weapon.

The 45-year-old veteran of the golfing wars gave further indication Thursday his "revamped" putting stroke has given him new life by pumping out a six-under-par 66 for a one-stroke lead after the first round of the $200,000 American Golf Classic.

Sikes toured the 7,105-yard North course at Firestone Country Club in a scintillating 33-33, stroking in six birdies along the way.

That placed him one stroke ahead of Don Iverson, Mike McCullough, Fuzzy Zoeller, Ed Sneed and Bobby Wadkins. Six others were right behind at 68, including Jim Colbert, who won the last American Golf Classic in 1974.

In all, 43 golfers finished under par on the lesser known of the two Firestone courses. The South course has gained fame in many major tournaments as "The Monster," but this is the first regular tour event for the slightly shorter and wetter North course.

Sikes avoided the 53 acres of water awaiting off-line shots and, by the luck of the draw, began play after sometimes heavy rain and ground fog disappeared. He also mastered the wet, undulating greens.

"My tour really started about the time of the Kemper Open at Charlotte (in mid-June)," Sikes noted after explaining that a severe case of flu and then a pulled muscle forced him out of much early competition.

"I used the time at home to revamp my putting style," the stocky non-practicing attorney explained. "I had what is called a long putting stroke, which gets tougher to work with as you get older."

"I changed that to a short compact stroke where you hit the ball quickly and keep it on line," he added. "Before that, I was consistently hitting the ball to the left of the hole."

"The change has made a world of difference in my putting and it's made me feel like playing golf again," Sikes said with a wide smile.

Sikes currently stands 90th on the PGA money list for the year with $18,797. First prize in this tournament is $40,000.

Zoeller, Sneed and Iverson, although longshots, are familiar names to followers of pro golf. Wadkins, younger brother of tour veteran Lanny Wadkins, and McCullough are the longest of the longshots among the first day leaders.

McCullough, in fact, was not added to the tournament's invitational field until Tuesday night, coming in as an alternate when Larry Ziegler opted out.

McCullough and Sneed both exploded into the pack of front-runners with incoming 32s, four under par. Those were the best scores of the day on the back nine.

Connors, Borg Extended

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jimmy Connors and Bjorn Borg, one-two in the rankings at the U.S. Pro Tennis championships, continued to win Thursday. It was difficult as one-two-three.

Both the top-seeded Connors and second-seeded Borg — winner of the event the last two years in a row — were extended to three sets before advancing to the quarter-finals of the $125,000 tourney at Brookline, Mass. Connors had rallied past unseeded Jiri Hrebec of Czechoslovakia 2-6, 6-2, 6-3, then Borg squeaked 15th-ranked Ross Case of Australia 6-0, 5-7, 6-3.

"I've said it a thousand times and I'll say it again: everybody's good these days and if you beat somebody 2-1, you're lucky to win 2-1," Connors insisted. Connors' "luck" has been strong in recent weeks: he's won his last three tournaments.

Also entering the quarter-finals at the Longwood Cricket Club were fifth-ranked Adriano Panatta of Italy, who topped Australia's Mark Edmonson, 6-2, 6-3, and sixth-seeded Raul Ramirez of Mexico, who bested Patricio Cornejo 6-4 in the first set before the Chilean was forced to retire with a pulled leg muscle.

At the Tennis Weeks Open in South Orange, N.J., Dr. Renee Richards continued to struggle onward in the women's half of the tournament. The 42-year-old transsexual eye surgeon from Newport Beach, Calif., bested 29-year-old Kathy Harter of Seal Beach, Calif., 6-4, 7-6 in a mistake-filled match to reach the semifinals.

Ilie Nastase of Romania, top-seeded in the men's portion of the event, scored a rain-delayed 7-6, 6-3 victory over fourth seed Vijay Amritraj in moving on to the semis.

Dr. Richards, who will face Lea Antonopolis of Glendora, Calif., on Saturday, discussed the continuous pressure she has faced since entering the event.

"If I lose, they'll just say I was a flash in the pan and not worth all the fuss. If I win, they'll say, 'She has this tremendous advantage; we were right in the first place.' Either way, I come out of this a loser in that sense," she said.

In Federation Cup play at Philadelphia, the United States team advanced to the quarter-finals when Rosie Casals and Billie Jean King recorded victories over their Yugoslavian opponents.

Super Rematch Saturday

From ASSOCIATED PRESS
It doesn't mean anything, standings-wise or money-wise, but Saturday night's nationally televised (ABC, 9 p.m., EDT) game between the Pittsburgh Steelers and Dallas Cowboys will no doubt be played with all the intensity of Super Bowl X, when the Steelers beat the Cowboys 21-17.

The intensity will be provided by pride — and some long memories.

The Steelers are determined to prove that last weekend's 17-0 loss to the New York Giants (their first loss in five exhibitions and their first shutout loss in 49 games) was a fluke.

And the Cowboys will be out to prove that their 1-3 preseason record, including a 36-16 romp over Detroit, and their championship setback last Jan. 18 in Miami, were flukes, too.

After that Super Bowl loss, a few of the Cowboys were heard to mutter about how the Steelers had gotten away with some cheap shots on the field, that penalties which should have been called weren't.

Ausco All-Stars Post Victory
ZEELAND — The Ausco All-Stars from St. Joseph downed Baehre Ford of Kalamazoo 3-1 here Wednesday in the Zeeland fastpitch softball tourney.

Rich Robards was the winning pitcher on a two-hitter which included 14 strikeouts. Ron Mandarino paced the batters with two hits and a RBI.

Smith Resigns As Huron AD

YPSILANTI, Mich. (AP) — Dr. Albert E. Smith has resigned as athletic director at Eastern Michigan University to accept a position at his alma mater, North Carolina A&T. Eastern officials announced today.

Smith, who has been athletic director at EMU for 17 months, said he would become vice president for university relations at A&T, in Greensboro, effective Oct. 1.

"That was the general view," Dallas Coach Tom Landry said of the Cowboys' "cheap-shot" feelings as their rematch approached. "It was an unusual game." But Pittsburgh linebacker Andy Russell responded: "We're not a cheap-shot team. You don't win that way. You win with good techniques, and the best techniques aren't cheap shots."

In Saturday night's other National Football League exhibition, it's Buffalo at Los Angeles. Miami at Houston, Washington at the New York Jets, Baltimore at Atlanta, Chicago at Tampa Bay, Denver at St. Louis, Detroit at Kansas City, the Giants at Green Bay, Philadelphia at Minnesota and Cincinnati at New Orleans. On Sunday it's Oakland at San Francisco (national television, CBS, 3:30 p.m., EDT) and San Diego at Seattle; and on Monday night, New England is at Cleveland.

The Rams, Dolphins and surprising 49ers are the only NFL teams with unblemished exhibition records, each at 4-0.

In Buffalo, the Rams are facing the only team which knocked them off (31-24) during the 1975 preseason schedule. The Bills' 1-3 record would seem to be unimpressive, along with the fact that they've gone winless in a dozen games (nine in the regular season) on the West Coast in the past decade.

But they're coming off a 37-0 walloping of Green Bay, two of the touchdowns on Gary Marangi-to-Bob Chandler passes. Last time out the Rams beat Oakland 23-14 with John Cappelletti running for one touchdown and catching one of James Harris' two scoring strikes.

Miami doesn't have safety Jake Scott in the defensive secondary anymore — but with the offense it's been displaying, so what? The Dolphins have run up a league-high 98 points. That's well over three touchdowns a game. Bob Griese's passes accounted for three of their touchdowns in a 28-21 victory over Tampa Bay last week.

Eau Claire Faces Major Rebuilding

Must Replace Star McAfee

EAU CLAIRE — First-year coach Tom Ferry has what might be called a monumental rebuilding job to do at Eau Claire this season.

Gone are four first-team, all-Red Arrow gridders, including class C all-stater Don McAfee. The quick running back led the area in scoring with 136 points and rushed for 1,585 yards including games of 299 and 290.

A pair of offensive linemen, Larry Westerhoven and Larry Bartels, and defensive lineman Al Flowers also graduated from a team which finished fifth in the conference with a 3-4 mark. The Beavers were 4-4 overall.

All is not lost, though, as the Beavers do return both quarterbacks. Senior Joe Simaz (5-9, 150-pounds) and senior Jeff Harner (5-10, 160) alternated on just about every play last season.

"Joe is a little better option back and a good field general," Ferry comments. "Jeff is a stronger passer and a good runner."

"Both are skilled at that position and I may have to alternate them again. I haven't decided that yet."

Eau Claire also lost Don Bailey and Jerry Hopkins from last year's backfield. Vying for spots this season will be senior Monroe Wright (5-9, 160), senior Russell Griffin (5-11, 145) and junior Dave Yircott (5-9, 150).

The line was hurt by graduation but three solid performers in senior Mike Bailey (6-0, 190), junior Santo Costanza (5-10, 190) and senior Dennis Durham

(5-10, 195) return to protect Simaz and Harner.

On the defensive side, Bailey, Costanza, Durham and senior Brian Flowers (6-2, 195) will man the line with Simaz, Griffin and senior Lester Smith (6-2, 195) at the linebackers. In the defensive secondary will be Harner, senior Kevin Burbach (5-10, 150) and sophomore Kevin Mitchell (5-11, 165).

"We're going to have a good pass and run offense," indicates Ferry. "The kids are light in comparison to what we have had in the past but they are enthusiastic."

"Inexperience is going to be a drawback for us, especially in the line and backfield. We've got a lot of new kids breaking in."

Ferry is going to find out how good his team is right off the bat as the Beavers' first foe is a Frankfort team which has lost only two games in the last three seasons.

"It looks like Hartford and Berrien Springs in the conference this year," Ferry says. "Lake Michigan Catholic is tough and you can never take anything away from Watervliet."

Ben Getting Field Time

Bat, Glove Making Good Impression

By LARRY PALADINO
AP Sports Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Manager Ralph Houk is finally giving Ben Oglivie some playing time and it's been paying off for the Detroit Tigers — both on offense and defense.

Oglivie, the slim outfielder, has 10 hits in his last 29 at bats (.345) over seven games, with two homers and nine runs-batted-in. That has raised his average to .274 and he's got 32 RBI in just 212 at bats.

Houk hasn't done much platooning between left and right-handed hitters until recently. Oglivie's been playing more in the outfield, along with fellow left-handed hitter Dan Meyer, since designated hitter Willie Horton has gone into a slump.

Besides his bat work, Oglivie has developed into a solid fielder. Wednesday he let a ball get by him for an error, but he made three hard running catches. He has made several other super fielding plays in recent days.

If regular rightfielder Rusty Staub had been out there, chances are the balls would have fallen in — although it must be noted that Staub, despite being slow afoot, has a good arm and makes up for some of his fielding deficiencies with accurate throws.

Since right-hander Glenn Abbott, 2-3, is scheduled to pitch for Oakland Friday against Detroit, both Meyer and Oglivie will likely be in the lineup. Right-hander Vern Riffe, 7-9, is expected to pitch for the Tigers, who left Thursday for Oakland.

Despite leading the team in hitting last year with a .286 average after becoming a regular about mid-season, Benji was shunted aside by Houk in spring training in favor of Johnson. Staub and Ron LeFlore had the other outfield spots sewn up.

Berrien Ticket Sales Begin

BERRIEN SPRINGS — Berrien Springs football season tickets and athletic activity tickets go on sale Monday, Aug. 30, at the high school office. They will be available from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. each school day.

Football season tickets will cost $6 for adults and $4 for students, according to athletic director Bruce Talbot. Activity tickets, which are good for all home, regular season athletic events for the 1976-77 school year, cost $17 for adults and $10 for students.

Both tickets entitle adults to sign up for a reserved seat at the first home football game — Oct. 8 against Bridgman.

Rogers Facing Difficult Transition Year At MSU

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan State has begun putting its devastated football program back together, but the season promises to be a difficult transition year.

A year ago the Spartans were nationally ranked and touted as Big 10 contenders. Then the world caved in, as they played out a lackluster 7-4 season under the cloud of an NCAA investigation.

The football program violations cost MSU its head coach, a three-year probation with no television appearances or bowl games, and the suspension of seven players for part or all of the season. The athletic director was ousted and five new assistant coaches were hired in the shuffle.

It is the job of 41-year-old Darryl Rogers, former San Jose State coach, to put the pieces back together. But additionally burdened with injured players and introducing a new system, he hesitates at appearing confident.

"All coaches are optimistic at the start of the season," he said. "But when you look at some of your opponents, you become pessimistic. And other opponents make you downright suicidal."

"The competition in the Big Ten could be far superior to anything we're used to," he said. "We'll just have to see. It's something we don't know until we see some of those other teams."

The easy-going Rogers has a rough initiation to Big 10 football — the Spartans open at Ohio State on Sept. 11. After the home opener against Wyoming, MSU then takes on North Carolina State, Notre Dame and Michigan in a row.

Star defensive back Joe Hunt is out for the year, and starting light end Mike Cobb is lost for five games. Missing the first game will be starting defensive tackle Larry Betha and Ed Smith, who emerged from spring practice as the narrow leader in the quarterback fight.

The suspensions are being fought in court, so the players — who are practicing — could be reinstated in time to take on the Buckeyes.

To make matters worse, star linebacker Kim Rowekamp has not recovered from knee surgery and will miss some or all of the season. And the Big 10's probe of MSU's violations is still pending.

Rogers' first job is to decide whether junior Smith or senior Marshall Lawson will be calling signals. That's important, since Rogers intends to abandon Denny Stolz' conservative attack and throw more than 20 times a game.

Highly touted Detroit Southwestern quarterback Mike Marshall, however, has taken himself out of consideration, at least for this year. He asked MSU head coaches to give him a chance as a receiver, saying he wanted to play as much as quickly as possible.

He said eventually he'd like to return to quarterback, and Rogers has praised him as a possible starter.

Senior fullback Levi Jackson gives the Spartans a strong inside runner, while senior Rich Boes is a solid, if not flashy, tailback. But MSU is thin at the running back slots, especially since Ted Bell, switched to tailback again after working last spring as a defensive back, has quit football after recurring knee injuries.

It has some promising wide receivers in flanker Kirk Gibson and split end Eugene Byrd, both sophomores. The offensive line is generally sound, as is the kicking game, especially placekicker Hans Nielsen.

On defense, the standouts are Betha and ends — outside

A whole host of skilled defensive backs return. They include Tom Hannon, John Brestlin, Mike Imhoff and Dave Duda.

Rogers said MSU will continue to operate from an "I" formation, use an unbalanced line and "probably pass more than is customary in the Big 10. But we're not going to be a pass crazy team." But he forecasts a "minimum of 24 to 26 passes a game" — making Spartan Stadium a dizzying place for fans and opponents alike who are used to the plodding Big 10 style of offense.

With the uncertainty over injuries and suspensions, Rogers says nobody has a position locked up. "I really don't know how our people are going to perform," he said. "I think we'll look better than we did in the spring."

But how good the Spartans ultimately will look nobody knows — there are just too many uncertainties.

Jenner Potentially Big As Redford? Olympics Programmed By God

SAN JOSE, Calif. (NEA) — "If we had programmed it with God," says George Wallach, "the Olympics couldn't have worked out better for Bruce Jenner."

Wallach is the personal manager of the new cult hero of mid-America, the handsome, dazzling winner of the decathlon at the XXI Olympiad in Montreal. Wallach, an effervescent agent with a pad in one of those crags in the Hollywood hills, details the manifest destiny that led to the crowning of Jenner as the "world's greatest athlete" and the most exploitable property to come out of the Olympics.

"Let Frank Shorter lose the marathon. (He did.)"

"Let Dwight Stones lose the high jump. (He did.)"

"Let the 1500 meters become a nothing race. (With the defection of Kenya's Mike Boit, it did.)"

"Let Bruce win the decathlon with a flourish." And he did, with that climatic 4:12.6 mile to zoom, the world decathlon record to a phenomenal 8,618 points.

In New York immediately thereafter, claims Wallach, Jenner "was treated like Lindbergh" and "Bruce and Chrystie (his pretty blonde wife) became the new sweethearts of America."

In New York it was also revealed that besides Wallach and his 10 per cent agent's bite, the William Morris Agency will handle Jenner's theatrical future and Rogers and Cowan, of New York and Hollywood, will handle his publicity.

"Potentially," gushes George, "he's as big as Robert Redford. If Hollywood is calling, you've got to have guys (William Morris, Rogers and Cowan) who can respond to that call. Even if it does cost 10 points."

This is offer-study time as Bruce and Chrystie flew off to Hawaii for some restful frolicking. In the first two days after the Olympics, Wallach fielded $300,000 worth of offers. He says William Morris estimates that in the "commercial" area, Jenner can make $2 million.

"Already," says Wallach, "we've got two Hollywood proposals for films — HEROIC KINDS OF THINGS, A men's product offered $100,000 for a commercial. Mike O'Hara offered $200,000 for Bruce to compete for the ITA (International Track Association). That's out. We don't want him to be doing 20-yard sprints against O.J. Simpson."

"We want to limit commercial exposure to two or three blue chip companies on a long-term basis. In television, we want to give him sportscasting experience. Maybe do a couple of specials. No series."

"He might do state fairs for personal appearances. People want to meet him."

If you've got the idea by now all this has been fairly carefully orchestrated — before — hand, you're on the right track. Phil Finch, a young novelist, had already started on an autobiography with Bruce several months ago. A contract for Prentice-Hall to publish it next spring was signed two days after the Olympics, and a 6,000-word excerpt will appear in Sports Illustrated in a month.

Alan Rothenberg, a prominent Los Angeles lawyer retained by Wallach, carefully checks all the fine print. Alan, once in line to be commissioner of pro basketball, is a pragmatic type. "We've taken no deals yet," he says, "because we don't have the same problem as Mark Spitz (the '72 Olympics hero who flopped as a commercial personality). There's no need to take the money and run."

To cynics who wonder about the "All-America boy and Mom's apple pie" merchandising of Jenner, Rothenberg shrugs. "That's the way he is. Besides, that's what's selling these days. He'll get the bulk commercials — and Joe Namath can take the booze commercials."

They met for the first time when Bruce came to Los Angeles in January to compete in the Sunbelt Games. George took him to his Benedict Canyon home, the one with the kidney-shaped swimming pool and a 490SL Mercedes in the driveway. "I was the first person to show interest in him," says George.

Naturally, because Bruce was an amateur, there could be no formal contract and Wallach says that four months elapsed before he felt the Jenners were committed to him. But at the final Olympic trials in Eugene, Ore., and at the Games in Montreal, discreetly on the scene were Wallach, Rothenberg and Finch.

And when Jenner had finished competing in his last decathlon, the campaign for selling of a hero was already formulated.

"Ten years ago," says Wallach, whose firm is Sports Media Sales (he handles the radio and TV package of the Golden State Warriors, among others). "I collected baseball cards. And here I got America's hero."

He has, incidentally, already turned down a nude centerfold for Bruce Jenner in Cosmopolitan.

The Watervliet native was one of 28 people who qualified to compete in jumping, tricks and salom. Anderson was second in the men's no. 1 jumping, going 140 feet. He also was in the top 10 in tricks and salom, which placed him fifth overall in the nation. He represented the Chicagoland Water Ski Association and the Point O' Woods Country Club in the competition. Scott is 20 years old and a sophomore at Central Michigan University. He is working towards a commercial pilot's license. (Cliff Stevens photo)

Injuries Help Pack Stay Under Limit

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Injuries which have driven many of them to the sidelines are helping the Green Bay Packers stay within the complex roster guidelines of the National Football League.

That is almost the only pleasant thing that can be said about coach Bart Starr's remodeled team as he patches up another shaky presentation for a somewhat unenthusiastic hometown crowd.

Green Bay's injury handicaps and its newcomers' lack of polish were evident last week when Buffalo humiliated the Packers 37-0, their first shutout since 1973.

Green Bay, with quarterback Lynn Dickey recently returned from the injury ward, hosts the New York Giants in the 16th annual Bishop's Charities game Saturday night.

The Packers (2-2) and their unpromising performance have failed to draw a capacity audience to Lambeau Field this season.

Starr said he is leery of overworking Dickey's strained chest muscles, which kept him out of the last three games after he converted 80 per cent of his passes against the Cincinnati Bengals.

"But he obviously needs the work," Starr said, having only Carlos Brown as a tested reserve.

Alternate Don Milan was placed on the 15-day disabled list Monday, and No. 4 quarterback Dennis Shaw was waived.

A broken arm has sidelined linebacker Jim Carter, defensive tackle Dave Purefoy was nursing an ankle sprain this week, defensive end Clarence Smith had sore ribs, and wide receiver Gerald Tinker may be out for the season with a bum knee.

Starr decided Thursday that running back Bart Smith will be absent Saturday with a knee injury.

Ironically, injuries helped the Packers meet the NFL's 49-man roster limit with annoying ease Tuesday, especially with the disability status of Carter, Milan and defensive back Jim Burrow.

But new rules by NFL owners governing injured reserve lists and related categories remain uncertain.

Packer personnel director Dick Corrick, whose job includes interpreting such rules — said the absence of clear-cut limits and dates is going to complicate the trimming of rosters prior to the opening of the regular season in three weeks.

"It's terrible. It's a mess," he said.

The Giants said linebacker Andy Selfridge is to miss Saturday's game with a thigh injury and that Brad Van Pelt has a shoulder sprain.

There was some question whether fullback Larry Csonka would see much action. He has a neck sprain.

Eight Regulars, Transfer Bolster Bolster Eddies

EDWARDSBURG — Eight returning regulars and a transfer student make for an optimistic football outlook at Edwardsburg.

The Eddies are coming off a 1-7 campaign — one of their worst ever — but the veterans should have the savvy how to improve on that record.

"We've got some experience," says seventh-year Edwardsburg coach Ted Peak. "Last year we only had three kids with any varsity experience. We've now got lettermen just about every place."

"I think we are going to be better this year offensively. We still don't have any size, but we've got some quickness, and I think we are going to have to use that quickness."

Tim Shaw, last year's leading scorer, graduated, but returning to the backfield are 5-8, 160-pound senior quarterback Steve Butella; 5-6, 165-pound senior halfback Greg Peak (the coach's son), and 5-8, 175-pound senior fullback Jeff Armistead.

Kevin Buck, a 5-8, 150-pound senior transfer student from Minnesota, is in line for the other halfback slot.

Returning at ends are seniors Tony Kmita (5-9, 150) and Rob Wilfert (6-2, 170). Other line regulars are senior guard Phil Roth (5-9, 180), senior guard Bob White (5-9, 170) and senior center Dave Reed (5-9, 165).

Juniors Mike Pace and Dan Correll, who moved up from the jayvees midway through last season, round out Edwardsburg list of 10 lettermen. Pace is a tackle and Correll a running back and defensive end.

will be going both ways, and the defense could be respectable.

The Eddies allowed two touchdowns or less in three of their last four games last season.

"We've got some kids for the most part who have played some defense," notes Peak.

"We do need to come up with a couple of tackles."

Peak's varsity assistants will be Terry Gizzi and Dick Babier. Jerry Marshall will handle the jayvees and Ed Gardner and Jack Runyan will be in charge of the freshmen.

Eight Regulars, Transfer Bolster Eddies

Kevin Buck, a 5-8, 150-pound senior transfer student from Minnesota, is in line for the other halfback slot.

Returning at ends are seniors Tony Kmitta (5-9, 150) and Rob Wilfert (6-2, 170). Other line regulars are senior guard Phil Roth (5-9, 180), senior guard Bob White (5-9, 170) and senior center Dave Reed (5-9, 165).

Green Bay's injury handicaps and its newcomers' lack of polish were evident last week when Buffalo humiliated the Packers 37-0, their first shutout since 1973.

Green Bay, with quarterback Lynn Dickey recently returned from the injury ward, hosts the New York Giants in the 16th annual Bishops Charities game Saturday night.

The Packers (2-2) and their unpromising performance have failed to draw a capacity audience to Lambeau Field this season.

Starr said he is leery of overworking Dickey's strained chest muscles, which kept him out of the last three games after he converted 80 per cent of his passes against the Cincinnati Bengals.

"But he obviously needs the work," Starr said, having only Carlos Brown as a tested reserve.

Alternate Don Milan was placed on the 15-day disabled list Monday, and No. 4 quarterback Dennis Shaw was waived.

A broken arm has sidelined linebacker Jim Carter, defensive tackle Dave Purefoy was nursing an ankle sprain this week, defensive end Clarence Smith had sore ribs, and wide receiver Gerald Tinker may be out for the season with a burn knee.

Starr decided Thursday that running back Bart Smith will be absent Saturday with a knee injury.

Ironically, injuries helped the

Packers meet the NFL's 49-man roster limit with annoying ease Tuesday, especially with the disability status of Carter, Milan and defensive back Jim Burrow.

But new rules by NFL owners governing injured reserve lists and related categories remain uncertain.

Packer personnel director Dick Corrick — whose job includes interpreting such rules — said the absence of clear-cut limits and dates is going to complicate the trimming of rosters prior to the opening of the regular season in three weeks.

"It's terrible. It's a mess," he said.

The Giants said linebacker Andy Selfridge is to miss Saturday's game with a thigh injury and that Brad Van Pelt has a shoulder sprain.

Bangor Playing Football Again

BANGOR — Bangor is back in the football business this season, and it has created some unique problems for first-year coach Don Hodgman.

As many fans recall, the Vikings were forced to drop football last year when a millage vote failed. So this season they are only playing three home games and will have to split gate receipts with opponents for two of them.

Bangor also has only one player with varsity game experience on the team this year. In his sophomore year, Bob Garvison, a split end, was brought up to play in a single game.

"It really has created a numbers problem for us," Hodgman states. "We only have 23 out for the varsity this season. "The interest is real good at the junior level as 18 of them came out. We also have six seniors and one sophomore on the team."

Hodgman feels he may have two of the best backs in the area in David Gregory and Rolie Hoosier. Junior Gregory (5-11, 165 pounds) "has as much potential as Maurice Mitchell had at this time," the head coach says.

Mitchell is now at Northern Michigan University where he is the career leader in pass receptions (68) and pass receiving yards (1,173).

"Gregory is one of the quickest backs around," he states. "He hits the line quickly and will get a lot of yardage on his own."

Hoosier (6-0, 182) is a senior transfer from Chicago Hurst. "He is awfully good from what he has shown us," comments Hodgman. "He's not as quick as Dave but has the size."

Running the offense will be junior Doug Watkins. The 6-0, 180-pounder played as the junior varsity's quarterback as a freshman two years ago and can throw the ball well, according to Hodgman.

David Sarters, a 5-10, 160-pound junior will be the other wide receiver.

On the front line will be junior tackle Bob Weaver (6-2, 241), junior guard Paul Schroyer (6-0, 169), senior tackle Stuart Rissley (5-11, 205) and sophomore guard or tackle Phil Baker (6-1, 195).

On defense, Williams and Hoosier will go as linebackers while Gregory and junior Gary Adams (5-8, 160) will play in the secondary.

"Right now, numbers and depth are our biggest problems," states Hodgman. "If we get a couple of people bumped around, we're in trouble."

"If we can get some fair results in the first two games, we'll have a good season."

"But right now, it's back to a learning process. Two of our weaknesses are timing and blocking."

With Hodgman on the varsity is Dick Eastman. Walt Dunipillis and Jerry Munser are handling the junior varsity.

Largent Traded

SEATTLE (AP) — Rookie wide receiver Steve Largent has been traded from the Houston Oilers to the Seattle Seahawks in exchange for a future draft choice. Seahawks General Manager John Thompson said Thursday.

Rangers' Offense Talented

Defense Decimated By Graduations

CASSOPOLIS — Tailback Tim Hartsell, the only sophomore to make the all-Blossomland first team last year, is back to spark what looks like a potent Cassopolis offensive team.

Hartsell, a 5-10, 175-pounder who gained about 900 yards last fall while averaging more than five yards per carry, is among seven returning offensive starters for fourth-year Ranger coach Cal Titus.

"We think offensively we've got the best club we have had in the last few years," declares Titus. "We're not big, but we've got quickness."

But Titus is worried about how many points his Rangers will be giving up. The defense has been decimated by graduation, including the loss of five players who earned first or second team all-conference honors in 1975.

"Our defense is shaky," continues Titus. "But I think we might have something to say about who wins it (the Blossomland championship). We will be a decent ball club."

Joining Hartsell in Cass' backfield will be two other returning starters — 5-10, 173-pound senior quarterback Dennis Lawson and 6-0, 183-pound senior fullback Joe Wallace.

Lawson, a starter the past two seasons, passed for four touchdowns and 675 yards last year, while Wallace, a good blocking back, powered his way to an average of more than four yards per tote.

will probably be filled by Roy Brown or Eric Collins, a pair of lettermen.

Returning to the line are senior ends Nick Stunage (6-3, 185) and Kevin Loder (6-5, 180), senior tackle Dennis Wooden (6-2, 220) and junior guard Jim Miller (5-10, 195).

But Wooden is doubtful because of high blood pressure and kidney problems. "I hope he can play because he's the only size we've got," adds Titus.

Other line possibilities are tackle Marty Beckwith, who didn't play last season; guard Vince Weatherspoon, who started one game last fall before sitting out the rest of the season for discipline reasons, and junior Leon Gilliam, a junior varsity product.

On defense, the only returning line veteran is Wooden. All three linebackers are gone, but Lawson, Stunage and Brown return to the secondary.

The other defensive spots will be filled when the squad starts scrimmaging with pads next week.

Cassopolis is coming off a 6-3 record — the school's best since 1969 — and has the added incentive of playing on a new field this fall.

Titus' varsity assistants include Ken Wright and Dave Zimmerman. Larry Van derHeyden is handling the jayvees and Don Alexander is the freshman coach.

Newquist's Sizzling 65 Leads Open By 2 Shots

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — Dave Newquist, who has won only $14,000 this year on the Professional Golfers Association tour, fired a sizzling seven-under-par 65 Thursday to take a two-stroke lead into today's second round of the $60,000 Flint Open.

Newquist, 25, who was born in Battle Creek but lives in Scottsdale, Ariz., fired nines of 32-33 over the 6,902-yard Flint Elks Club course. His 65 put him two strokes up on Steve Veriato and Rick Acton.

The satellite tourney was delayed twice for about two hours total due to an electrical storm. Four threesomes still on the course when it became dark will finish up today.

Battle Creek's Randy Erskine, winner of last week's Michigan Open, was among five golfers at 69 while tour star Dave Hill, formerly of Jackson, had to overcome a bad start to pull in at par 72.

Newquist had seven birdies and 11 pars in his round, which tied the Elks course record set last year by Erskine and George Cagle in the final round of the same tournament — the richest on the "mini-tour."

"I played very well today," Newquist said rather simply.

He finished fourth in the Bot Hope Desert Classic this year to win $7,500. First prize here is worth $12,000 and the use of a new car for a year.

Acton has had to overcome four major operations. He didn't play last year because of two knee operations. Last March he was in an auto accident and he has played in just five tournaments since.

MiOSHA Safety Proposals Called Costly, Ambiguous

By JOHN FENNEL
Staff Writer

It will cost the average farmer who employs outside labor about $1,300 to make the necessary changes in his farm equipment to meet safety requirements proposed by the Michigan Occupational Safety and Health Administration (MiOSHA).

The state version of federal OSHA includes the controversial retro-fit requirement that will force farmers to install guards for all farm equipment with exposed moving parts, not just equipment purchased after Oct. 25, 1976 as required by the federal standards, plus other new proposals.

"The standard is much broader in scope than the federal standards," said Dr. Richard Pfister, Michigan State university safety engineer, adding that the proposals would cost Michigan farmers $31 million or on the average $1,300 each.

Pfister said the MiOSHA proposals are ambiguous and will be a detriment to safety because they will confuse farmers to the point that they will not act on the requirements at all.

The proposals are similar to the OSHA standards with regard to tractor rollover protection that go into effect Oct. 25, but include many other requirements, Pfister said.

Allan Harvie, deputy director of administrative services for the Bureau of Safety and Regulation, said, however, that the requirements are necessary to save lives and lessen injury on Michigan farms.

The Michigan Department of Labor has scheduled a public hearing Sept. 13 in Lansing to get public opinion on the new proposals from interested people.

The requirement to retro-fit was originally included in the federal proposals, some of which are now in effect, but was eventually dropped after a committee, which spent months studying the idea, said the costs would be prohibitive for farmers, Pfister said.

Under the MiOSHA standard, much of existing farm equipment will have to be junked because most manufacturers will not design guards for old equipment, and farmers say it's impossible to build guards for some of their machinery, Pfister said.

Beside retro-fit, other major changes that would be put in effect if the proposal is adopted are:

must check brakes and controls on tractors each morning before they are used.

—Tractors must be equipped with headlights and backup lights if used between dusk and dawn.

The agricultural advisory committee, which is made up of farmers, sent the proposals to the nine-member safety committee for approval without the retro-fit requirement. The safety committee didn't agree with their recommendations and again added retro-fit, according to Karl Slusser, safety coordinator for the Michigan Bureau of Safety and Regulation.

BEDDING FLOWERS DISCUSSED: Kalamazoo County Extension Director Gale Arent (right) gives grower Matt Hetrick some tips in growing flowers. Hetrick owns the longest greenhouse in the state.

Kalamazoo Area:

'Celery City' Tag Is Obsolete

Kalamazoo county, once known for its celery industry, is quickly becoming a national leader in bedding plant production, growing more than 1 1/2 million flats of flowers and vegetables annually.

Dutch settlers began growing celery in the county about 100 years ago but gradually began looking for a new crop when the industry became less profitable. At one time Kalamazoo was known as "Celery City," but the nickname was gradually forgotten as other crops were grown and as industry moved into the area.

Kalamazoo county has been growing bedding plants for less than 20 years, but in that time has grown to the point where county growers now ship to more than 20 states.

Contributing to the success of the industry have been the growers, Michigan State university extension service, Bedding Plants, Inc., and the Kalamazoo Valley Plant Growers Cooperative.

The extension service began helping the bedding industry 10 years ago "because, even though other floriculture industries were receiving educational information from MSU, the bedding plant growers seemed to be left alone," said Dr. William Carlson, MSU floriculture specialist.

Carlson and extension agents produce a monthly newsletter called, "Growing Transplants" and conduct short courses on seed and scheduling, transplanting, growth retardants, disease and pest control.

Bedding Plants, Inc., an organization designed to help promote the industry and interest more homeowners in using bedding plants, was formed in 1968 at the second annual Western Michigan Bedding Plant Industry conference.

The organization now produces numerous brochures and leaflets, sends a monthly newsletter to grower members and holds a conference each year.

Another organization that has been helpful in making Kalamazoo county a leader in the bedding industry is the Kalamazoo Valley Plant Growers Cooperative, established in 1967 to help members find better ways to market their product, expand industry and do group purchasing of supplies.

Dale Grimm, co-op manager, says about three-fourths of the county's growers are members, and they grow about two-thirds of the county's total bedding plant crop. Although members do some marketing on their own, the co-op markets about one-third of all bedding plants produced in Kalamazoo county.

MACMA Asks $195 A Ton For Concords

By NICK SMITH
Staff Writer

In Michigan this year "it'll take at least $195 a ton to get grapes out of the vineyard," a marketing expert said while explaining the decision to ask $195 a ton for Concord and Niagara grapes.

The 12,000-ton grape crop predicted for Michigan is so light that processors will be forced to go out of state to get enough grapes, Harry Foster, marketing manager for the Michigan Agricultural Cooperative Marketing Association (MACMA), said in an interview this week.

Pointing out that this year's crop will be the smallest in Michigan since 1951 — when growers earned $106 a ton for a 10,000 ton crop — Foster said "there is already excessive demand for what we've got."

Subtracting National Grape Cooperative's share of the crop, Michigan growers this year may not even be able to supply enough grapes to satisfy the needs of the state's wineries according to Foster.

About half of the 12,000 ton crop will go to National, Foster said, and the wine industry in the state alone uses up to 12,000 tons of grapes some years. In order to satisfy their customers, Foster said, processors will obviously have to get grapes elsewhere.

Although Michigan's contribution is slight, the Great Lakes states as a whole will produce a normal crop. The United States Department of Agriculture has pegged the Great Lakes grape crop at 266,000 tons.

The MACMA grape price recommendation normally is based on 16 brix, with higher-sugar grapes fetching more money. This year the recommendation contains no such scale, nor is it based on 16 brix.

Also omitted were recommendations for Delaware and wine grape prices. In fact, Foster said, the marketing committee considered not making any recommendation on the Concord price and just letting the short-crop price establish itself.

No grape price has been established in New York, but Foster said growers are asking $170 a ton. It costs about $35 a ton to ship grapes from New York to Michigan, Foster added.

Foster recalled that last year's Michigan grape crop was predicted to be 65,000 tons. Growers were paid from $105 to $110 a ton, and the crop was in fact about 56,000 tons. About 3,000 tons last year were sold on the fresh market.

In 1974 growers earned an

Black Rot To Reduce Yields Here

Black rot disease has infected many vineyards in Southwestern Michigan due to favorable germinating conditions present during the last three days of July. Combined with losses due to spring freezes, the disease is expected to further reduce grower yields.

Experts predicted the grape crop this year will be the smallest since 1951.

According to Bill Grevelding, area manager for member relations of the National Grape Cooperative (Welch), favorable conditions were present for black rot between July 29 and 31 when the area received rain followed by two dry days and another rainfall. However, the spread of the disease was further aggravated in many vineyards by growers who slackened up on expensive chemical spraying because of predictions of heavy losses due to freezes, said Mike Thomas, district horticultural agent.

"Some growers didn't have a good crop and didn't keep up with spraying," Thomas said, adding that the disease has had a limited effect on growers who have had a good crop all along and have kept up with spraying.

"Many took a look at the crop they had and decided that they weren't going to spray or were going to cut down on the spray because it looked like they were going to have heavy losses," Thomas said. "When some realized that the crop wasn't so bad, they began spraying, but in some cases it was too late," he added.

While some growers in Paw Paw and the Lawton areas are not expected to harvest at all, some growers in western Berrien county along the St. Joseph river are expected to have fairly large yields, Thomas said.

Grevelding said growers should spray with copper or ferbam spray to prevent the spread of the disease from one set of berries to another.

Thomas said research is being done on the diseased grapes, "but we don't expect that it's anything abnormal."

Farm Exports Might Fall Shy Of $22.1 Billion Record

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. farm exports for the 1976-77 fiscal year, boosted by large grain shipments to drought-stricken Western Europe, are expected to fall just shy of this year's record $22.1 billion, the Agriculture Department says.

The department estimated that farm exports will total $22 billion, with Western Europe expected to import about $7.8 billion of that amount, up from $7 billion this season.

"Exports of feed grains and protein feed (mainly corn and soybean meal) will be spurred by the severe drought that plagued Western Europe in mid-1976 and by the attendant drop in production of grain and forage," the department's Outlook and Situation Board said last Wednesday.

Thus, after several years of ranking second behind Asia as the leading regional foreign buyer of U.S. farm products, Western Europe apparently will nudge ahead. Purchases by Asian customers are expected to total $7.5 billion, up from $7.2 billion this season.

Japan, however, will continue as the top single buyer with purchases of $3.5 billion against $3.3 billion in 1975-76, the report said.

The Soviet Union, which bought more than $2 billion worth of U.S. grain this season, will buy about $1.3 billion worth of wheat, corn, soybeans and other commodities in the fiscal year that will begin Oct. 1, the report said.

However, officials said that the export forecasts for 1976-77 "are not perfectly comparable" with previous fiscal years that began July 1 and ran through the following June 30. The new fiscal year, and those to follow under a government bookkeeping change, will begin Oct. 1 and continue through Sept. 30, 1977.

Even so, the report supported earlier estimates that the volume of exports for some commodities — including wheat and corn — will be down somewhat in the 1976-77 year while quantities of others such as cotton, rice and tobacco may increase.

The report said that in all, about 99 million metric tons of major commodities are expected to be exported, compared with a record of nearly 103.5 million tons in 1975-76. A metric ton is 2,205 pounds.

The Soviet Union, which bought about 16 million tons of

Plum Asking Price Is 6 Cents A Pound

The Michigan Agricultural Cooperative Marketing Association (MACMA) yesterday announced an asking price for processed Stanley plums of six cents a pound ($120 a ton).

The association also decided not to recommend prices for processed pears or peaches, said Marketing Manager Harry Foster. Prices for the light peach crop and the extremely short pear crop will "find a reasonable level" by themselves, Foster indicated.

The Stanley plum asking price is up from the four to four and one-half cents a pound paid last year. It is based on a crop predicted to be one-third smaller than the 1975 harvest, Foster said. The harvest in 1975 was about 18,000 tons, and the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) pegs this crop at 12,000 tons.

The announcement by USDA that it will purchase canned purple plums for school lunch and elderly person programs in the fall should help to establish this year's price, Foster added.

U.S. wheat and corn the past year to make up for its drought-short 1975 harvest, will take about half that amount in the coming year, the report said.

CA Storage Apples Will Be Picked Early

McIntosh apples headed for controlled atmosphere storage should be picked between Sept. 1 and 12 in Southwestern Michigan, according to Don Dewey, Michigan State university horticulturist.

Jonathans should be harvested between Sept. 19 and 28 and Delicious apples should be picked from Sept. 26 to Oct. 5 if they are bound for long-term storage from orchards in this corner of the state, said Dewey.

Dewey announced the estimated harvest dates for long-term storage apples during a clinic in Grand Rapids last week. He commented that orchards in the southern part of Michigan will be harvested unusually early this season because of the very warm weather in April that caused early pollination.

Meanwhile, the Southwestern Michigan Apple Maturity Committee has decided not to recommend a fresh-market picking date for McIntosh apples, according to Berrien Extension Horticulturist Harvey Belter.

Belter said that the unusually early blossoming of apples and the frosts that followed stretched the normal harvest season for McIntosh and other varieties. Some McIntosh apples, from trees that weren't struck by frost, are already being sold at the Benton Harbor Fruit Market, he said. McIntosh trees that bloomed again after being struck by frost won't be ready for harvest for one or two weeks.

The Apple Maturity Committee usually announces a starting date for McIntosh harvest to help insure that the quality of fruit offered is good, Belter added.

CASE #U-4840, #U-4621

TO THE ELECTRIC CUSTOMERS OF CONSUMERS POWER COMPANY

THE FOLLOWING NOTICE OF HEARING IS GIVEN
PURSUANT TO THE MICHIGAN PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION'S ORDER IN CASES NO. U-4840 AND U-4621 DATED APRIL 12, 1976.

Monthly hearings will be held before the Michigan Public Service Commission for the purpose of considering authorization to permit Consumers Power Company to reflect in monthly billings to its customers charges or credits for changes in appropriate items of expense associated with purchased and net interchange power from a base cost included in previously approved rate levels.

A hearing will be held on September 10, 1976 at 9:30 AM in the offices of the Commission, Law Building, Lansing, Michigan to consider inclusion of a proposed purchased and net interchange power adjustment charge of minus .38 mills per kilowatt-hour to be applied to bills rendered to Consumers Power Company customers in the October 1976 billing period.

The hearing shall be for the purpose of determining the amount of purchased and interchange power expense incurred during the calendar month of July 1976 and the reasons therefor. Details of the calculation of the proposed adjustment will be presented along with a summary of net system kilowatt-hour requirements including details of the various types of purchased and interchange power transactions and circumstances necessitating any outages of installed capacity for a period exceeding ninety (90) days. This information will be available on and after August 31, 1976 for examination and inspection at the offices of the Commission Secretary, Law Building, Lansing, Michigan 48913 and at the offices of the Executive Director of Rates, Research and Data Control of Consumers Power Company, 212 W. Michigan Avenue, Jackson, Michigan 49201.

The Michigan Public Service Commission may either grant or deny the requested adjustment, in whole or in part, and may grant a lesser or greater adjustment than that requested. Interested parties may intervene by placing an appearance on the record at the hearing.

Jurisdiction in this matter is pursuant to Sections 1, 2, 6, 7 and 8 of 1909 PA 106, as amended, MCLA 460.551, et seq; 1909 PA 300, as amended, MCLA 462.2, et seq; Sections 3 and 4 of 1919 PA 419, as amended, MCLA 460.51, et seq; Sections 4, 6 and 6a of 1939 PA 3, as amended, MCLA 460.1, et seq; 1969 PA 306, as amended, MCLA 24.201, et seq; and the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure, 1954 Administrative Code, Supplement No. 54, R460.11, et seq.

Big Incense Firm Began In 'Bathtub' Laboratory

By STEPHEN FOX
AP Business Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fred Block can talk about the sweet smell of success.

The former flower child just turned 30 is founder and president of The Olfactory Corp., one of the country's biggest incense makers with sales of more than $2 million last year. It's a long way from the bathtub operation he began in 1967 to earn some money after his wife got pregnant.

"I got into incense because I got really turned on by it personally," says Block, a soft-spoken man whose conversation is a mix of street sass and management maxims. "It's not the kind of thing you jump into because you say: 'I think I'll make a career in incense.'"

It was 1968, and Block was burning some Indian incense in his Venice apartment. He decided to write the manu-

BATHTUB OPERATION: Fred Block of Los Angeles, former flower child just turned 30, holds sample of incense that netted his Olfactory Corp. more than $2 million last year. turer to find out more about the centuries-old product.

"This strange-looking package came back from Bombay, all wrapped in linen," he recalls. "It was about four pounds of incense. I started burning it and people liked it. I got quite a bit of interest, so I sent them $25 and told them to ship it airfreight."

"When it got here, I found out the airfreight from Bombay cost $125, so I had to go out and nickel and dime my friends to pay the waybill."

Demand for Block's incense, which he sold in headshops on the Sunset Strip, grew. In true entrepreneurial fashion he decided to stop selling someone else's product and start making his own.

"I stopped importing, read as much as I could about it and finally learned how to put together some incense," he says. Then, after experimenting with sawdust, ground-up flowers and various perfumes, he put together what he claims was the world's first strawberry incense and sales began to move.

Block moved, too. The lady in the ground-floor apartment was complaining about the strange aromas wafting down from the bathroom lab upstairs. It was hard to blame her — Block had concocted 103 different fragrances. He has since trimmed his product line on the grounds that "the world isn't ready for 103."

The Olfactory Corp., now nine years old, sells its incense in stick form through supermarkets, record stores and other retail outlets. Aromas range from sweet pea to heliotrope, with more common fragrances like frangipani, cherry and wild blackberry also available.

Block, who started in business at age six selling newspapers on a Philadelphia street corner, is similar to most executives in wanting to increase the demand for his product. Of course, he puts it a little differently.

"I do want to turn as many people as possible on to their nose," he says. "It's an uplifting thing. And the demand for our product worldwide is very great — wherever people have a nose."

Cass Office Taking Loan Applications

CASSOPOLIS — The Farmers Home administration office here has announced it is now accepting applications from Cass county farmers for emergency loans needed because of frost-damaged crops last spring. Loan applications for physical losses must be received by Oct. 18, 1976. Loan applications for production losses must be in no later than May 20, 1977, administration officials said. Emergency loans have been approved for farmers in 11 Michigan counties, including Cass, Allegan, Berrien, and Van Buren. The loans must cover damages caused by sub-freezing temperatures during the period April 9 through May 20. The FHA office is located in the Eastgate building in Cassopolis.

Estate Entered In Probate

Proceedings have been initiated in Berrien Probate court on the estimated $70,000 estate of John A. Granzow, of St. Joseph, who died Aug. 9.

Mr. Granzow, 83, of 1925 Langley avenue, was a retired self-employed contractor and carpenter. His 1976 will estimates real estate holdings at $30,000 and personal property at $30,000.

The will bequeaths household goods and any vehicles to his widow, Catherine, and the rest of the estate in a trust fund at Farmers & Merchants bank in Benton Harbor.

WILDCAT WALKOUT
DETROIT (AP) — About 600 workers at the Fisher Fleetwood plant walked off the job Thursday evening, forcing the plant to shut down operations, according to a spokesman for United Auto Workers Local 15.
A spokesman for the local said the workers were protesting the suspension of their union president and chairman earlier in the day.

Market Drifts Lower

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market drifted lower again today, ignoring one positive report on the economy's direction.
After opening trades, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down more than three points.
Declining New York Stock Exchange issues led those advancing four to one.
As an indication of volume, the exchange's ticker tape was one minute late in recording trades at one point.

At the start of trading, the Commerce Department said its index of leading economic indicators rose .5 per cent in July, the 17th monthly increase in a row.
The index is designed to show future trends in the economy. Six of the 12 indicators that make up the index advanced in July, but five declined, the government said. One was unavailing.

Tampa Electric, up 1/4 at 18, was an early volume leader today. U.S. Steel was unchanged at 47 1/2 and Exxon was down 1/4 at 51 1/2. Both were also active.

On Thursday, the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 10.39 to 960.41, its lowest close since June 9 when it finished at 938.05.

Declining NYSE issues held a 7.5 lead on those advancing.

Big Board volume fell to 15.27 million shares from the 17.40 million traded the day before.

The NYSE composite index of all its listed common stocks was down .35 at 54.17.

And at the American Stock Exchange, the market value index slipped .17 to 101.23.

Officer Assaulted; Man Held

NEW BUFFALO — City police here said they arrested Clifton A. Hardaway, 21, 13210 Wilson road, New Buffalo, early this morning on charges of assaulting a police officer and violation of the controlled substance act.

Hardaway, according to police, was a passenger in an auto stopped for defective taillights on US-12 just west of here at 2:30 a.m.

Police said there were also two women in the car, one of whom was driving the vehicle.

Officers said that during a search of the car, they found a number of bags containing suspected marijuana.

Officer Al Harrington said he was struck in the head during a search of Hardaway, but did not require medical attention.

The two women in the car were not charged, police said.

Fairplain Man Seeks Patent

Guy Hubbard of Fairplain has invented a holder for a hammer or other long handled tool which keeps it handy at waist level and has applied for a federal patent for it.

Hubbard, of 1643 Lydia Ct., applied for the patent with the help of the Raymond Lee Organization, Inc., New York, which announced the new invention.

The loop is formed of a single length of stiff wire bent to shape and welded together or held by a sleeve crimped over both ends. The clip portion slips over a belt like a paper clip.

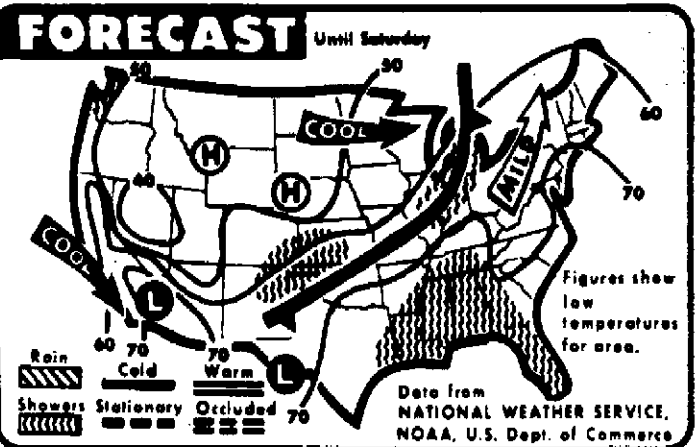

"It's something I've used for years, and one of the most handy things I've used," Hubbard said when asked why he was applying for the patent.

Hubbard is an electrician who has been working on construction of the Cook Nuclear Plant, Bridgman, for the past four years.

KILLS DRINKING PAL
TOKYO (AP) — A Tokyo garbage man was charged with murder today for beating his drinking companion to death because he talked too much about the Lockheed scandal.

A Benton township man was arrested Thursday after a couple told township police a man struck them with his fists and pointed a rifle at them during an argument at their home.

South Haven Land Annexation Delayed

By TOM RENNER

South Haven Correspondent

SOUTH HAVEN — A restraining order delaying the annexation of a 20-acre parcel of land in South Haven township to the city of South Haven has been issued by the Ingham county circuit court, township Supervisor James Schnake reported last night.

A hearing on the township's petition for an injunction had been scheduled for today in Lansing, but was cancelled after the attorney general indicated he would not object to the order pending judicial review of the case.

The township is challenging a State Boundary

Commission decision annexing the township property to the city. The city petitioned to have the land annexed because the tract is totally surrounded by the city. The annexation had been scheduled to become effective last Friday.

In its challenge, the township contends that the Public Act authorizing the annexation of property without a vote of the property owners is in violation of the state's constitution. The township also contends that the state agency made its decision based on erroneous information presented during a public hearing.

No date has been set for review of the case by the court, Schnake said.

CANNERS CASE

Farm Bargaining Suit Is Sent Back

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state Supreme Court has returned to a lower court a suit challenging the constitutionality of the state Agricultural Marketing and Bargaining Act.

The court said Thursday that Ingham County Circuit Court was wrong when it ruled it had no jurisdiction in the suit, filed by the Michigan Canners and Freezers Association.

The high court said the circuit court has the power to decide the question of constitutionality, although the canners have

Cass Office Taking Loan Applications

CASSOPOLIS — The Farmers Home administration office here has announced it is now accepting applications from Cass county farmers for emergency loans needed because of frost-damaged crops last spring. Loan applications for physical losses must be received by Oct. 18, 1976. Loan applications for production losses must be in no later than May 20, 1977, administration officials said. Emergency loans have been approved for farmers in 11 Michigan counties, including Cass, Allegan, Berrien, and Van Buren. The loans must cover damages caused by sub-freezing temperatures during the period April 9 through May 20. The FHA office is located in the Eastgate building in Cassopolis.

Estate Entered In Probate

Proceedings have been initiated in Berrien Probate court on the estimated $70,000 estate of John A. Granow, of St. Joseph, who died Aug. 9.

Mr. Granow, 83, of 1925 Langley avenue, was a retired self-employed contractor and carpenter. His 1976 will estimates real estate holdings at $40,000 and personal property at $30,000.

The will bequeaths household goods and any vehicles to his widow, Catherine, and the rest of the estate to a trust fund at Farmers & Merchants bank in Benton Harbor.

WILDCAT WALKOUT

DETROIT (AP) — About 600 workers at the Fisher Fleetwood plant walked off the job Thursday evening, forcing the plant to shut down operations, according to a spokesman for United Auto Workers Local 15.

A spokesman for the local, said the workers were protesting the suspension of their union president and chairman earlier in the day.

Market Drifts Lower

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market drifted lower again today, ignoring one positive report on the economy's direction.

After opening trades, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down more than three points.

Declining New York Stock Exchange issues led those advancing four to one.

As an indication of volume, the exchange's ticker tape was one minute late in recording trades at one point.

At the start of trading, the Commerce Department said its index of leading economic indicators rose .5 per cent in July, the 17th monthly increase in a row.

The index is designed to show future trends in the economy. Six of the 12 indicators that make up the index advanced in July, but five declined, the government said. One was unavailable.

Tampa Electric, up 1/4 at 18, was an early volume leader today. U.S. Steel was unchanged at 47 1/2 and Exxon was down 1/4 at 51 1/2. Both were also active.

On Thursday, the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 10.39 to 960.44, its lowest close since June 9 when it finished at 958.09.

Declining NYSE issues held a 7-5 lead on those advancing.

Big Board volume fell to 15.27 million shares from the 17.40 million traded the day before.

The NYSE composite index of all its listed common stocks was down .35 at 54.17.

And at the American Stock Exchange, the market value index slipped .17 to 101.23.

Officer Assaulted; Man Held

NEW BUFFALO — City police here said they arrested Clifton A. Hardaway, 21, 13210 Wilson road, New Buffalo, early this morning on charges of assaulting a police officer and violation of the controlled substance act.

Hardaway, according to police, was a passenger in an auto stopped for defective taillights on US-12 just west of here at 2:30 a.m.

Police said there were also two women in the car, one of whom was driving the vehicle.

Officers said that during a search of the car, they found a number of bags containing suspected marijuana.

Officer Al Harrington said he was struck in the head during a search of Hardaway, but did not require medical attention.

The two women in the car were not charged, police said.

Fairplain Man Seeks Patent

Guy Hubbard of Fairplain has invented a holder for a hammer or other long handled tool which keeps it handy at waist level and has applied for a federal patent for it.

Hubbard, of 1643 Lyola Ct., applied for the patent with the help of the Raymond Lee Organization, Inc., New York, which announced the new invention.

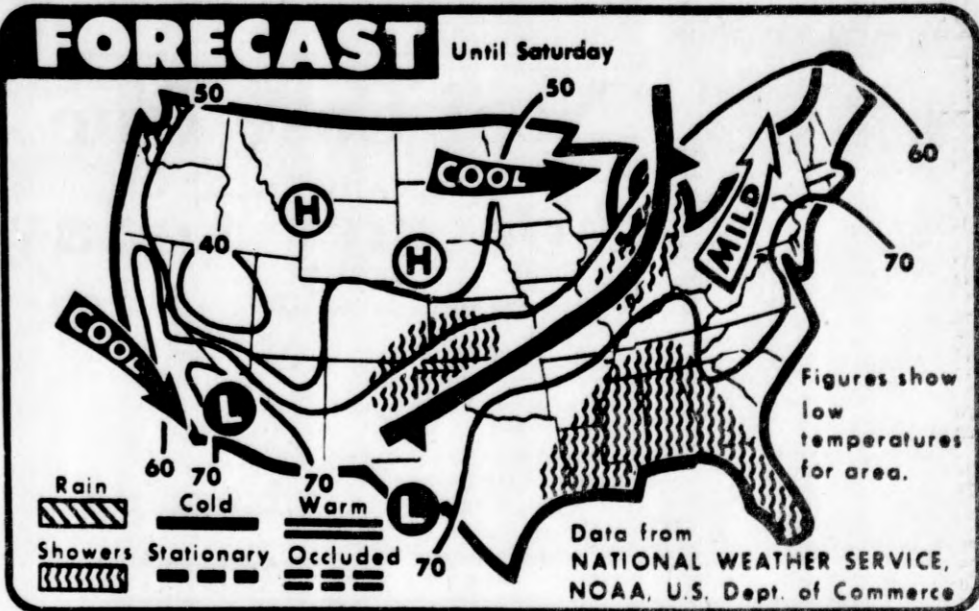

The loop is formed of a single length of stiff wire bent to shape and welded together or held by a sleeve crimped over both ends. The clip portion slips over a belt like a paper clip.

"It's something I've used for years, and one of the most handy things I've used," Hubbard said when asked why he was applying for the patent.

South Haven Land Annexation Delayed

South Haven Correspondent

SOUTH HAVEN — A restraining order delaying the annexation of a 20-acre parcel of land in South Haven township to the city of South Haven has been issued by the Ingham county circuit court, township Supervisor James Schnake reported last night.

A hearing on the township's petition for an injunction had been scheduled for today in Lansing, but was cancelled after the attorney general indicated he would not object to the order pending judicial review of the case.

The township is challenging a State Boundary

CANNERS CASE

Farm Bargaining Suit Is Sent Back

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state Supreme Court has returned to a lower court a suit challenging the constitutionality of the state Agricultural Marketing and Bargaining Act.

The court said Thursday that Ingham County Circuit Court was wrong when it ruled it had no jurisdiction in the suit, filed by the Michigan Canners and Freezers Association.

The high court said the circuit court has the power to decide the question of constitutionality, although the canners have the burden of proving that argument.

The canners filed suit after the state Agricultural Marketing and Bargaining Board named the Michigan Asparagus Growers Division of the Michigan Agricultural Cooperative Marketing Association as the sales and bargaining representative of the Processing Asparagus Bargaining Unit.

The canners sought a ruling on the constitutionality of the state law and review of the decision under the state Administrative Procedures Act.

But Ingham County Circuit Court Judge Thomas Brown dismissed the complaint, ruling the Court of Appeals had jurisdiction to review all action by the marketing and bargaining act.

POLICE ROUNDUP

Girl Says Two Men Raped Her At Park

A 15-year-old Benton Harbor girl told city police she was raped by two men who forced her into their car and took her to Jean Klock park late Thursday.

The girl said she was walking in a driveway near the Belcoet store, 1800 M-139, Benton township, when forced into the car. She said some unidentified people at the park gave her a ride to the police station where she reported the incident about 11 p.m. She was not injured.

Leo Luckett, 36, of 531 Colfax avenue, told Benton Harbor police he was beaten and robbed of $175 by two men in the 500 block of Pavone street about 1:30 a.m

Neal Case Due For Jury Today

The jury in the Charles Neal murder trial was to begin deliberations today after hearing closing arguments of prosecution and defense attorneys.

The defense concluded its portion of the case yesterday afternoon in Berrien Circuit court and Judge William S. White was to instruct the jury on the law before deliberations.

The case will apparently go to the jury on charges of second degree murder and manslaughter, court personnel indicated, because White on Wednesday threw out a first degree murder charge after ruling the prosecution had not shown any premeditation.

Neal, 25, of Benton township, is accused of killing Laverne Cornelius, 17, who disappeared from her Benton township home Feb. 7, 1975. Parts of her body were later discovered in a Berrien township pine grove. Neal, who owns Mr. Neal's karate school in Benton Harbor, has claimed he was at his karate school the night Miss Cornelius disappeared.

Hearing Asked In Van Buren

PAW PAW — John Hughto, 21, 23rd street, Mattawan, demanded preliminary examination on a charge of grand larceny when arraigned Thursday in Van Buren Seventh district court.

Paw Paw police said he was arrested in connection with the Aug. 16 theft of $1,450 from the Pacer service station in Paw Paw, where he was formerly employed.

Bond was set at $3,000 pending an Aug. 31 hearing.
